President's Corner

Fall is always an exciting time "on the Hill." There are new and familiar faces. There are students and faculty exchanging ideas and searching for knowledge. There are administrators and staff providing support and service. There are alumni and friends stopping by for a visit.

Fall also means Homecoming and an opportunity to express our appreciation to you for your continued support of the University. Our alumni and friends are an invaluable resource for Southwestern.

Many of you help with our recruitment endeavors. As alumni and friends, you are our best recruiters. You know from first-hand experience what time spent "on the Hill" means to an individual. The results of your Southwestern experience are meaningful to a potential student. Thanks for being a SWOSU recruiter!

Many of you help through your donations to the SWOSU Foundation. Your gifts provide external funds that enrich our academic programs and provide scholarships. Your gifts provide faculty development opportunities, support our athletic program, and expand our community services. Thanks for your dollars!

Many of you help by volunteering your time to provide service to Southwestern. Some of you serve as officers and board members of our Alumni Association and the Foundation. Some of you help with the booth at the State Fair and in the shopping malls. Some of you help in arranging and hosting our area alumni meetings. Thanks for your time!

Unlike many experiences in life, once you have attended Southwestern you remain a part of this fine institution. How long has it been since you have been back "on the Hill?" Come by for a visit. Come back for Homecoming. Be a proud part of Southwestern!

THESE President's Club members of the Southwestern Foundation were honored at a late July luncheon on the Weatherford campus. President's Club members give at least $1,000 during a fiscal year. Attending the luncheon were (front from left) Virginia and M.A. Diel of Clinton and Selma Flaming of Weatherford. Back--SWOSU president Dr. Joe Anna Hibler; A. Wayne and Joi Dell Salisbury of Clinton; Dale Crowder, Nita and David Kelley and Fay and Doyle Jackson, all of Weatherford.

Foundation looking for support

The sun has risen on a new era at Southwestern Oklahoma State University. Beginning September 1, 1990, Jim Waites assumed the office of Director of Development. With him comes the continued commitment to excellence in education at Southwestern.

One concern of the university is the need to provide better services through the Southwestern Development Office. With an increasingly competitive job market and with major industry looking at Oklahoma as a relocation site, the challenge to Southwestern is to deliver quality education that will benefit all of our students now and in the future.

The ability to provide the financial edge in educational excellence will come from the Southwestern Oklahoma State University Foundation. The Foundation seeks to build a broad base of financial support through the personal commitment of annual gifts of Southwestern's alumni and friends.

In order to preserve and to enhance the commitment to the finest education embodied in Southwestern, financial contributions are needed to become a part of the molding of excellence that is uniquely Southwestern Oklahoma State University.

SWOSU President Inaugurated

Area residents attended the first-ever formal presidential inauguration ceremony at Southwestern Oklahoma State University at Weatherford on Friday, April 26.

Many dignitaries from around the state of Oklahoma attended the 2 p.m. ceremony in the Fine Arts Center which inaugurated Dr. Joe Anna Hibler as the 15th president of Southwestern.

The regional universities of Oklahoma historically have not had formal inauguration ceremonies, but recently the Board of Regents of Oklahoma Colleges decided to initiate the formal events. Dr. Bill Cole at East Central University at Ada and Dr. Larry Williams at Southeastern Oklahoma State University at Durant have had ceremonies.

One of the requirements is that all activities of the ceremony must be financed by outside sources. No university monies are used. Jim Waites, Director of Development at Southwestern, was in charge of raising funds, and he indicated that people in western Oklahoma were very generous with their support.

The April 26 event was a colorful and festive ceremony with a reception following. Both the ceremony and reception were open to the public, and everyone was invited to attend.

Participating in the ceremony were regents, university presidents and officials, legislators, other guests and over 150 Southwestern faculty members who were adorned in academic robes.

As part of the ceremony, an investiture service with the symbols of office was held, and Dr. Hibler was presented with a mace and medallion. The mace was made on volunteer time by several Southwestern faculty members and employees. Dr. Fred Janzen coordinated the making of the mace, and it was created by Dr. Gary Bell of the SWOSU technology department and SWOSU employees Jim Loomis, Rick Skinner and Gary Mullins. Kelley Jewelers of Weatherford did all the engraving work. The mace will be displayed permanently in the president's office at Southwestern.

Joe Lamb is Yukon Teacher of the Year

Joe Ben Lamb, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Lamb of Hammon, has been selected as Yukon Teacher of the Year. An Independence Middle School teacher he, along with the nine other candidates, was honored at a reception at IMS.

Lamb was presented a crystal apple and one dozen roses for his outstanding contribution to education in Yukon.

"I am overwhelmed," Lamb said. "Yukon has the best teachers in the State of Oklahoma."

Lamb is also the District Teacher of the Year and will go on to represent Yukon in the Oklahoma Teacher of the Year.

Lamb is a seventh and eighth grade math teacher at IMS. He was taught in the Yukon schools for two years, and has been teaching for 10 years. He has served as science coordinator in the Moore schools.

Lamb is a graduate of Southwestern Oklahoma State University, and is a member of the President's Council on Drug Abuse. He has also been a committee member of the Excalibur program and served as chairman of the IMS Quiz Bowl in 1990.

The following is an excerpt from Lamb's application regarding his teaching philosophy:

"I believe the next trend in education will be 'outcome-based' teaching. This is a program in which students never make D's or F's. The program, which emphasized additional help for students, does away with measuring a student's accomplishment's by using conventional methods.

DR. JOE ANNA HIBLER, who was formally inaugurated as 15th president of Southwestern Oklahoma State University on April 26, holds the mace which was presented to her during the 2 p.m. ceremony in the Fine Arts Center on the Weatherford campus. The public was invited to attend both the ceremony and reception.

Stewart and Neff pictures to be displayed in dorms

Just who are Stewart and Neff Hall dormitories named after at Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford?

That is a question which many SWOSU students and, probably, area residents cannot answer. But, thanks to the work of SWOSU biological sciences professor Dr. Michael A. Kerley, students will soon be seeing pictures and biographical information on Dr. Dora Ann Stewart and Audubon Henry Neff.

Late in the 1990 fall term, Southwestern president Dr. Joe Anna Hibler commissioned Kerley to do research work on Stewart Neff, both namesakes for women's and men's dorms, respectively, at the Weatherford university. Hibler felt it would be good to preserve this bit of SWOSU history.

It has been 51 years since the two college dormitories were officially christened on March 7, 1940. Pictures of Stewart and Neff, which since have disappeared, were unveiled in separate ceremonies during the spring of 1941 and were placed in the respective foyers of the dorm halls.

To replace the missing pictures, Kerley has framed a 1923 picture of Stewart and a 1926 photograph of Neff. The pictures will be placed in the foyers of Stewart and Neff Halls sometime during the 1991 fall semester. Stewart Hall is located in the southeast area of the SWOSU campus, while Neff is located in the southwest area.

Dr. Stewart came to Southwestern in 1909 when she received an appointment as assistant in the Department of History and Political Science. She was named professor in 1910 and head of the Department of History and Government in 1913. She remained at Southwestern until 1948 when she retired. After teaching for one year at a Shawnee school, she returned to her home in Weatherford where she lived until her death in 1971 at the age of 95.

For many years, Stewart was the chairman of the scholarship committee at Southwestern. By personally funding this program, she enabled hundreds of students to attend Southwestern. Kerley found in his research that Stewart Hall was named for her because of her unselfish service, her sacrificial love for Southwestern and the beauty of her life which was given freely for the welfare of Southwestern and the state of Oklahoma.

Neff came to Southwestern in 1915 when he was appointed professor and head of the English department. Tired of grading themes, he transferred to the Department of History in 1916. He was then named professor and head of the Department of Biological Sciences in 1918.

Professor Neff continued offering the core curriculum courses in zoology, botany and physiology which were established during the first year of classes at Southwestern in 1903-04. In addition, he changed the scope of advanced courses from that of a descriptive approach to one emphasizing experimentation.

Neff, who died in 1940 and his services were held in the Old Science Building auditorium, was often referred to as the "Will Rogers of Southwestern," according to information found by Kerley. Neff was described as a man of unimpeachable integrity, genial, never angry and with a good word for everyone. Elizabeth Neff, a daughter of Neff's, still resides in Weatherford.

Pharmacy Association honors alumnus

Warren Meador of Elk City has been honored by the Oklahoma Pharmaceutical Association as its 1991 recipient of the "Bowl of Hygeia" Award for outstanding community service by pharmacists. Meador, owner of the Paul Jones Health Mart Drug in Elk City, received the award at the association's Annual Meeting at the Fountainhead Resort in Eufaula.

Making the presentation was Bill J. Jamison, of Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, a research-based pharmaceutical company headquartered in Pennsylvania. Participating in the ceremony was Kenneth Eck, president of the Oklahoma Pharmaceutical Association. Eck is a SWOSU alumnus.

Meador's community activities are extensive. He served as Campaign Chairman of the last two local Mayor races and was Campaign Chairman on two of the past State Representative Races. He is also a past President of the Elk City Chamber of Commerce, the founder and supporter of the Northwest Homeowners Association and organized Elk City's "Pride in America" local ceremony to honor our men and women serving in the Persian Gulf.

In pharmacy, Meador is a member and past President of the Oklahoma Pharmaceutical Association and is the current Chairman of the Oklahoma Pharmaceutical Association Political Action Committee. Meador received training in pharmacy from Southwestern Oklahoma State University where he is an active member of the Alumni Association.

The Bowl of Hygeia, most widely recognized international symbol of pharmacy, derives from Greek mythology. Hygeia was the daughter and assistant of Aesculapius (sometimes spelled Asklepios), the God of Medicine and Healing. Her classical symbol was a bowl containing a medicinal potion, with the serpent of Wisdom (or guardianship) partaking of it. This is the same serpent of Wisdom which appears on the caduceus, the staff of Aesculapius which is the symbol of medicine.

Established in 1958, the award is now presented annually by participating pharmaceutical associations in each of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the 10 provinces of Canada.

His wife, Gina, is also a SWOSU pharmacy graduate.

Dear Sir:

We received our "Echoes From the Hill" today. We read that you were unable to locate a 1951 year-book, and consequently did not know who the class officers were for that year. You probably have received many letters, but since my husband was the president, I would like to give you these names: Larry Hilburn, President (Hollis, OK); Dick Glover, Vice-President (Binger, OK); Lois Likes, Secretary (Putnam, OK).

Larry was also editor of "The Southwestern" (working with Walter Crouch) and president of Kappa Pi art fraternity.

Oh yes! Their election slogan was "Hilburn Likes Glover."

SWOSU alumnus to contribute column

Since few western Oklahomans probably would dare or care to relocate to the nation's capital in an effort to get a closer look at the way our government works, a former area resident hopes he can bring some Washington insight to area citizens by way of the pages of the Weatherford Daily News.

The column is titled "Washington Journal."

Author of the what is expected to be a weekly installment is Mike Nikkel, a 1983 graduate of Corn Bible Academy and 1987 alumnus of Southwestern Oklahoma State University, and currently a

Alumnae state PEO president

SUE DUNN THOMAS, a SWOSU alumna, was named Oklahoma State Chapter PEO president at the state convention held on the SWOSU campus. Sue is a native of Thomas and now makes her home in Norman.

legislative assistant for Tom DeLay, 22nd District (Houston area) U.S. congressman from Texas.

(Nikkel's sister, Mickey Vogt, lives in Weatherford.)

Nikkel has worked in Washington exactly a year, serving under 1st District Congressman Jim Inhofe (D-Okla.) from Labor Day week of 1989 until January of 1990, when he went to work in the office of DeLay.

Before that, he was in China and Taiwan as a representative of Oklahoma City University, doing graduate development work. "I helped establish MBA (master's of business administration) programs in those countries," Nikkel said.

As for the purpose of his column, Nikkel said, "I would just like to give Weatherford-area residents the opportunity to see Washington from the inside out, rather than the outside in, and provide interesting details like who's cutting deals with who--and there are lots of deals made here."

Nikkel was born in Wichita, Kan., but began living in the Corn area when he was 14. His late grandparents, Ken and Pat Ratzlaff, had a farm near Cordell.

"I have big, vivid memories of farm life," Nikkel said. "We had a lot of alfalfa hay and did a lot of baling, harvesting and ran a lot of cattle."

At SWOSU, Nikkel received his degree in education and an appreciation for the small-campus atmosphere.

"I enjoyed my time at a small school. It's very relational," he said. "You get to know people better and you're in contact better with your professors."

At some point in the future, Nikkel wants to run for public office, but right now he seems more bent on helping Oklahoma overcome its economic miseries.

"I would like to help with international trade development for Oklahoma, and get the state away from dependency on the agriculture and energy sectors," Nikkel said.

"We need to do some diversification. Education-wise, I think the students in Oklahoma have a lot to offer."

Working for a Texas congressman has given Nikkel insight on why the Lone Star State is so competitive in the regional, national and international marketplaces.

"It (Texas) is a proud state," he said. "They feel they can't be beat. They go into negotiations and they think they're good enough to get it. They think they're the best so they are the best."

"Oklahoma needs that kind of pride."

More tangibly, Texas offers enticements such as no personal state income tax and, at least in the Houston area, no zoning laws whatsoever. Consequently, a new business can move in anywhere it wants.

Morgan named Administrator of the Year

Ann Larue Morgan, principal of Mustang Elementary School, has been chosen as Administrator of the Year for Oklahoma's District 11 of the Oklahoma Association of Elementary School Principals (OESP).

Morgan is a graduate of Weatherford High School and Southwestern Oklahoma State University. She is the daughter of Herman and Geneva Bottom of Cordell and she attended Cordell schools during her freshman and sophomore years.

OAESP is sponsored by the Cooperative Council of Oklahoma School Administrators (CCOSA).

District 11 included Canadian, Caddo, Grady, Commanche and Blaine counties. Candidates are anonymously nominated and winners are chosen by a committee of school administrators from across the state. CCOSA and OAESP will honor the district winners at a banquet at the Marriott Hotel in Oklahoma City.

Morgan has been with the Mustang school system since 1972. She began teaching fifth grade, then was a remedial teacher and vice principal for two years.

During the next seven years, she was, at different times, vice principal of four of Mustang's six schools. She is in her third year as Mustang Elementary principal.

Academics have always been the number one priority in any school, Morgan said.

"Basics come first, then you add extras," she commented.

Morgan has been credited with starting many programs for honoring the academically astute student.

Morgan and her husband, Gary, have two sons, Garrett, 8, and Aaron, 7. They attend Lake-homa Elementary School in Mustang.

Hogg named school principal

James Hogg assumed duties as Hooker High School principal after being selected by the local school board.

Hogg leaves the position of Tyrone school principal to come to Hooker.

He came to the Panhandle in 1978 as a teaching principal at Tyrone for two years before leaving for farming and then a teaching position at Okeene.

Hogg and his family returned to Tyrone three years ago where he took over as principal.

Hogg is excited about the move to Hooker and looks forward to the challenges of a larger school.

He and his family will live in Hooker which he sees as a great community. He enjoys the small town atmosphere offered there.

A native of Leedey, he received his bachelor's degree at Southwestern Oklahoma State University.

A teacher for 17 years, he has taught industrial arts, driver's education, psychology and coached football.

His family includes his wife, Lue Vera Hogg, who served as a librarian aid at the Tyrone school; and three children. Jamie Lue is a senior while Jaree Ellen is a seventh grader and Jeremy is in the sixth grade.

Karen Johnson Travis to receive doctorate

Karen Johnson Travis, a 1966 graduate of Gould High School, received her Doctorate in Curriculum and Instruction from Oklahoma State University in May.

She received a bachelor's degree in 1970 and her master's in 1976 from Southwestern Oklahoma State University.

Mrs. Travis currently is the elementary principal at Custer City Schools and teaches a night class at Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford. She is the daughter of Billie and Ballard Hill of Altus, and the late Floyd Johnson Jr. of Gould. Her husband, Bob, farms in the Custer City area and they have three daughters: Jennifer, a senior, Robin, a junior and Emily, a seventh grader.

Reception to honor Gravlee

A retirement reception was held for Gerald Gravlee, principal of Chattanooga High School. The reception was held in the school auditorium.

He also served as junior high principal and has been high school principal since 1963. He has been a senior sponsor for many student activities.

Gravlee has worked with the students at Chattanooga in securing help for them to attend college. There were 20 in the 1991 graduating class and 18 have received scholarships or grants to attend college.

Gravlee is a native of Clinton where he graduated from high school in 1947. He graduated from Southwestern Oklahoma State University in 1953.

He and Carlene Elliott have two children, Connie Jensen of Norman, a teacher at Newcastle, and their son Jerry, a coach at Minco. The couple also has three grandchildren.

Roof named to coach All-Staters

Kim Roof, Altus High girls basketball coach, has been selected as one of the West coaches for the annual girls All-State basketball games at Central State University at Edmond.

"This is quite an honor," Roof said. "You can only do it one time. When I was first selected, I didn't think I would get to coach because there was a rule that said you had to be a head coach for five years. I had only three years in Altus High. They decided that I had been coaching long enough, maybe not as a high school head coach, that I deserved to go ahead and coach."

"The greatest honor you can receive is to go get an honor like this by one of your peers in your own profession."

Roof has guided the Altus High Lady Bulldogs to a 61-16 record in three years as head coach, including 26 consecutive victories at home in that span.

Roof's squads have won three

Southern Conference crowns and been Regional champions for three years.

The Lady Bulldogs won the area championship in 1989 and 1990.

Altus reached the state quarter-finals in 1989 and the state semi-finals in 1990.

Roof has coached one all-stater in Jan Chastain and had an alternate all-stater in Jennifer Young this season.

Two Altus High academic all-staters have played under Roof in Lindy Eckman and Alisa Martinez.

Before assuming the duties at Altus High, Roof was head coach at Northeast Junior High for nine seasons, guiding the Lady Huskies to a 139-52 record and winning five Great Plains Conference championships.

Kim is a graduate of Thomas High School and Southwestern Oklahoma State University.

Distinguished Alumni Nominations

Persons wishing to nominate alumni for the Distinguished Alumni Hall of Fame may submit names and a resume to Dr. Bob Brown, Executive Vice-President, Southwestern Oklahoma State University, Weatherford, Oklahoma, 73096. Dr. Brown is chairman of the committee that will make the selection.

Alumnus named to Educator's Hall of Fame

Arch Alexander, alumnus of Southwestern Oklahoma State University was recently inducted in the Oklahoma Educator's Hall of Fame. He joined 20 prior inductees whose portraits hang in the corridors of the Oklahoma State Department of Education as symbols of the best in Oklahoma education.

Few can combine two careers. Dr. Arch Alexander succeeded, over a period of 40 years, serving both his nation in the military and his state in the field of higher and vocational-technical education.

A veteran of World War II service as a navigator, he returned to active service during the Korean War and remained in reserve status until 1977, when he retired as a colonel. His son, Lt. Col. Joe Alexander, recently saw active service in the Middle East, while a daughter, Sheila Cates, follows a second Alexander family tradition as an official of the Montana State Department of Libraries.

Alexander served as a high school teacher in Hobart after World War II, and was dean of Sayre Junior College before and after his duty in Korea. From 1954 until 1965 he combined that position with that of superintendent of schools in Sayre.

After brief service as assistant state coordinator of area vo-tech education in Stillwater and a stint as dean of academic affairs at Cameron State College in Lawton, Alexander returned to Stillwater as a top official of the Oklahoma State Department of Vocational and Technical Education. He also taught as an adjunct professor at Oklahoma State University and the University of Oklahoma, and in the mid-1980's journeyed to Kingston, Jamaica, as a consultant in education.

He currently serves as consultant in international programs for the state vo-tech agency in Stillwater.

"He served as a mentor for countless people who have become outstanding educational leaders in Oklahoma and the nation," his nominator, Zed DeVaughan, said. "He was the leader in establishing the 'Quick Start' industry program. An Arch Alexander was also one of the key leaders in the development of the area vocational-technical school system in Oklahoma."

Alexander has been honored by national vo-tech groups, and in 1985 the city of Stillwater proclaimed an Arch Alexander Day in honor of his contributions to that community.

Alumnus joins federal network in Washington, D.C.

Ed Beck, principal of Thomas Elementary School in Thomas, Oklahoma, met with members of the U.S. Congress and White House staff to discuss the federal role in fulfilling the national education goals and how it will affect education legislation and appropriations for Oklahoma's schools.

Beck discussed the national goals with more than 100 elementary and secondary school principals from across the nation who make up the Federal Relations Network. The group meets annually in Washington, D.C., to participate in the Federal Relations Conference, sponsored by the National Association of Elementary School Principals (NAESP) and the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

In 1990 the 50 governors and President Bush challenged the American public to achieve these goals: better prepare preschoolers to begin school; reduce high school dropouts; step up student achievement in all subject areas; spur American students to superior status in science and mathematics; assure that every adult is literate; and maintain safe, disciplined, and drug-free schools.

In addition to meeting with Oklahoma's congressional delegation, Beck attended a series of briefings on Capitol Hill and at the White House that included discussions with key committee members of the House and Senate: Representatives William H. Natcher (D-KY), William Ford (D-MI), and Senators Thad Cochran (R-MS), Paul Simon (D-IL), and Jeff Bingaman (D-NM).

The principals discussed their agenda with Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton, who served on the original goal-setting panel of governors, and with White House domestic policy leaders Dr. Roger Porter and Dr. Charles E. M. Kolb.

Beck serves as Oklahoma's federal legislative coordinator for NAESP, a 26,000-member association of elementary and middle school principals established in 1921 and headquartered in the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area.

Buck retires at Altus

John Buck, retiring assistant superintendent in the Altus Public Schools, was honored with a reception in the Morris Foster Library conference room.

Prior to assuming the position of assistant superintendent in 1977, Buck was principal of Altus High School for six years. With 33 years of education, he was also a junior high principal, teacher and coach in Mangum and a teacher and coach in Elk City and Tipton.

In Altus he has served as president of the Kiwanis Club and has been a member of the United Way Board of Directors, Parks and Recreation Board of Directors and the Census Committee. For the past 13 years he has coordinated the Kiwanis Little Olympics.

He and his wife, Jane, who is secretary at Southeast Junior High, are members of Thomas Street Church of Christ. They have two children, Susan Hepner, a first grade teacher at Rivers Elementary, and Steve Buck, vice president of Citizens Bank of Lawton.

Buck graduated from Altus High School in 1953 and from Southwestern Oklahoma State University in 1957 with a bachelor's degree in business education and in 1963 with a master's degree. At Southwestern he was student body president, outstanding senior man, All-American in football and All-Conference in football for four years.

School official selected

Loretta Schmidt of Colony was named Thursday as the first director of curriculum for the Weatherford Public School System.

Three members of the Board of Education met to take the vote. Schmidt's actual selection apparently was discussed during an executive session.

Schmidt was principal at Polk Elementary in Oklahoma City and for several years was coordinator for staff development and entry-year teacher evaluation for the State Department of Education.

"Serving as director of curriculum excites me because it's an opportunity to pull together all my 20-plus years in education," Schmidt said. "Rarely do you have that unusual treat to be able to put all these things to work."

Dr. Greg Moss, school superintendent, said, "Her experience and abilities will greatly enhance Weatherford's tradition of excellence in education."

The position of director of curriculum was created at Moss's recommendation. The position of assistant superintendent was not filled after Dr. Zane Bergen retired a year ago, in part as a budget-savings measure but also to allow the new superintendent to determine how best to meet the system's needs for administrators.

Alumnae's gallery attracts finest Indian artists

A once-a-year rival for the finest art galleries in Santa Fe, NM, the Gallery of the Plains Indian was the center of artistic activity.

The ninth collection of intertribal art, exhibited each year in conjunction with the Cheyenne-Arapaho Labor Day Pow Wow, was on display in a historic building in the former Indian colony founded in the late 1800's. Nearly 100 visitors and artists viewed the works and attended an artists' reception.

The gallery was founded by Colony native Yvonne Kauger in 1981 as a marketplace for the abundant artistic Indian talent in this area.

Kauger, a justice of the Oklahoma Supreme Court, said, "I always wanted to own a gallery in Santa Fe, and I couldn't afford that, so I opened one in Colony--after all that's the center of the universe anyway."

Kauger, who also started Oklahoma City's annual Indian dance event, Red Earth, said she can't claim to be of Indian blood--"I always wanted to be"--but said she was "adopted" by the Indians and learned to appreciate their culture young in life.

A board of trustees helps manage the gallery and set up the annual exhibit, which is previewed in Oklahoma City. Trustees are Jerome Busyhead, Benjamin Harjo Jr., Sharron Ahtone Harjo, Betty Hunter, Alison McManes, William Renner and Terry Zinn.

Works on display ran the gamut from mystic to realistic in all mediums from oils, acrylics, watercolors and colored pencil canvases to sculptured paintings where the eyes of the ancient subject seem to look at the viewer no matter where he stands.

Three-dimensional displays included carvings of Indian figures dressed authentically in the garb of various tribes, knives and sculptured features done in pipestone and alabaster, jewelry, pottery, pipes, bronze sculptur and tools of rock used to grind grain and dated 1200 A.D.

The exhibit which featured the sculpted paintings of Bert Seabourn, included other well-known artists such as Harvey Pratt, composite artist for the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, Cynthia Clay, Darran Cooper, Brenda Kennedy Grum-mper, Sharron Ahtone Harjo, Brooks Henson, Mike Larsen, Austin Real Rider, Mike Daniel, Mavis Doering, Asa Battles and Helen Burgess.

Yvonne Kauger is a graduate of Southwestern Oklahoma State University and a member of the SWOSU Distinguished Alumni Hall of Fame. She is a member of the State Supreme Court.
