NEH Summer Stipends

The National Endowment of the Humanities Summer Stipends provide $6,000 for two consecutive months of full-time research and writing. Recipients must work full-time on their projects for these two months, and may hold other research grants supporting the same project during this time. Summer Stipends normally support work carried out during the summer months, but arrangements can be made for other times of the year.

For more information check out the website: <http://www.neh.gov/grants/guidelines/stipends.html#program> or contact OSP.

Those faculty who have received Travel Grant Awards and have visited with NASA Center personnel will be eligible to apply for Research Initiation Grants, each averaging $21,000. Please refer to the NASA Mission Directorates for areas of research interest.

Proposal Development Tip of the Month

In addition to conducting the usual literature review during the project development process, you should also review abstracts of recently funded projects in your project/research area. The abstracts often offer hints about what an agency is currently interested in funding as well as research trends in your field. Moreover, it is essential to know what has been awarded so that you can properly distinguish your project from others that have recently received funding. Perhaps the worst (preventable) comment one might receive from a reviewer is, "Professor X at ABC University recently received a grant for a similar project, and we cannot recommend an award for what appears to be a duplicative project."

Many federal agencies (and some state/private agencies) have Internet-based searchable databases containing the abstracts of recently-funded projects. You can usually search by keyword, competition, principal investigator (PI), institution and year of award. Links to the major federal agencies' databases are listed below.
