Foreword

The SWOSU Journal of Undergraduate Research (SWOSU JUR), a journal developed and run by SWOSU students and faculty, is pleased to present its inaugural issue. The mission of the SWOSU JUR is to showcase the diverse research activities happening at our institution, and we hope to achieve this goal in the following ways: promote a collaborative atmosphere that encourages research and scholarly activities; foster mentor/mentee relationships between faculty and students; publicize original intellectual and creative contributions by students and faculty; and provide opportunities to engage in all aspects of research and scholarly activities.

Very rarely does an edition of a journal get made without copious amounts of dedication and support from a multitude of sources. The journal staff would like to acknowledge the hard work and persistence that each of the authors and their faculty mentors have put into their contributions.

We would also like to extend our gratitude to the individuals that have helped publish this work: the Office of Sponsored Programs and the students' allocation at SWOSU for their financial support, student editor Heather Bailey for her meticulous copy editing endeavors, the other student editors, and all the blind reviewers for their time and effort in helping our students polish their work for publication. Finally, the journal would like to show appreciation for the efforts of members of the faculty who made this journal possible: Managing Editors—Dr. Andrea Holgado, Dr. David Hertzell, Dr. Denise Landrum-Geyer, and Dr. Becky Bruce; Production Editors—Dr. Joel Kendall and Nicholas Lindley; Review Coordinator, Dr. Muatasem Ubeidat; and Outreach and Promotion Coordinator, Dr. Stephen Burgess.
