10-Minute Play Auditions Scheduled at SWOSU

The SWOSU Department of Art, Communication and Theatre is conducting auditions for their student-directed and designed 10-minute plays.

The cold-reading auditions will be held in the SWOSU Hilltop Theatre on Tuesday, March 9, at 7 p.m. All students, regardless of major, are invited.

Five students from the Play Directing and Production class will be teamed up with students from the Lighting Design class to collaborate on the production process for five different plays. Over 30 people will be needed to complete these projects.

“This will give the SWOSU community an opportunity to be involved in theatre production in many different ways,” Steve Strickler said. “The productions will be presented at the end of the semester.”

The university’s mask policy will be followed. All participants will be required to wear a mask, and social distancing will be expected for the auditions, rehearsals and performances.
