E. H. "HACK" McDONALD

Funeral services were held on Friday, Aug. 24, for E. H. "Hack" McDonald, a favorite son and alumni of Southwestern Oklahoma State University. McDonald, 77, a retired state educator, was considered by many as an expert on Oklahoma school law.

McDonald was born in Cloud Chief and received his teaching degree from (then) Southwestern State College. He later earned a master's degree from Western State College at Gunnison, CO.

His teaching career began at Carter, where he lived with the parents of Cecil Folks. McDonald went on to work in the Walters, Vincent, Verden, Gracemont, and Noble public schools before joining the Oklahoma State Department of Education in 1947. While at the department, McDonald worked in teacher certification, Indian education, and vocational rehabilitation. He also served as the Deputy State Superintendent of Oklahoma Schools. McDonald served as the interim head of the state education agency in 1968, following the death of Dr. Oliver Hodge.

McDonald set a perfect example for other Southwestern alumni by his pride, loyalty and support of Southwestern. He was present on campus at various activities and meetings, including many Homecomings. He was inducted into the Southwestern Distinguished Alumni Hall of Fame, served as a member of the Southwestern Alumni Board of Directors, and was a lifetime member in the Southwestern Alumni Association.

Most of McDonald's working day was spent on the telephone with school administrators from across the state, dealing with problems of interpretation of Oklahoma school law. He was an early riser--arriving at the Capitol each morning by 7 a.m.

McDonald argued with those who said children were not getting a good education in modern society. He noted that more courses were being offered to teach Oklahoma's young to live in modern society than ever before and that children were reading far more than critics of state schools would admit. McDonald was also quoted as saying that, "The teacher or principal assumes the duties of the parent for the child at school or school functions."

A wife and two children--Steve of Oklahoma City and Mrs. Dale Fiegenger of Freeport, TX, survive McDonald. Steve McDonald followed in his father's footsteps and served as Director of the State Education Board's Finance Division.

Human Dynamo

Dear Otis:

Enclosed is some additional information about Dad. Words on paper, however, can't capture the real dedication and dynamic ability of a man like Dad. One newspaper described him in an editorial as a "human dynamo"--and that he was. I would add, however, a human dynamo "with a heart." I remember that if a young man or woman wanted to attend Southwestern but did not have the money to do so, Dad would find or create some type of job to help with room, board, books, and tuition. And there were times when he and mother would provide some help from the family budget. One of the things that Dad was very proud of was establishing the School of Pharmacy. That took some skill and maneuvering to overcome both open and behind-the-scenes obstacles, and I remember it well. He talked about all the steps (and "men of little vision") around the dinner table. And he was a very happy man when he obtained the final approval.

There are many stories--his arrival as President shortly after fire destroyed the old Administration Building--and everything in it including all the typewriters. Classes were about to begin, and there were no typewriters and no money to buy them. He drove to Oklahoma City, strolled the halls of the Capitol spotting unmanned typewriters on desks. He walked in each office, introduced himself as the President of Southwestern, and said he was there to pick up "those three typewriters." He told each person to prepare the "property transfer receipt" (which he had had printed in Weatherford) and he would return in a few minutes to sign them. "If you have any question," he said, "I'll be with the Governor, and you can call me there." So he visited with the Governor (Leon C. "Red" Phillips), and during the conversation, he said, "By the way, Governor, I'm looking around some of the state offices for typewriters that aren't being used and am requisitioning them for the college. I'm sure that's O.K. with you." The Governor, like any good politician said, "Sure, Jim, sure." With no other authorization he went back around the offices, signed the forms he himself had printed (with the state seal at the top), and had the typewriters picked up and hauled to Weatherford by the National Guard--who he had also enlisted in his usual fashion. I saw the typewriters--a motley collection, but they worked--in the typing classes.

And there was the aviation program--again no money, but there was Dad's idea, a bit of brass, and a great deal of drive and ability. But that's another LONG story. My Uncle Lyle (David's father) helped with some key appointments and a week in Washington, Dad returned to Weatherford with the equipment and A.F. instructors plus no cost to the college.

Otis, I appreciate your interest in Dad. It was a big part of his and Mother's life, and for me, though I lived in other places longer, I've always remembered Weatherford as my favorite "hometown."

If you have any questions, call me. I WON'T be in the governor's office, but I'll be out campaigning for President!

Best,
Jim Boren

By the way, Otis, I played in the Southwestern band several times when I was in high school. Dick Jewell, the band director, was short of tenor saxophones!

Heritage Proud

Dear Millie:

Some outstanding Southwestern instructors are featured in the Spring 1984 issue of WESTVIEW, the official publication of the Southwestern Center for Regional Studies, Leroy Thomas, Editor.

Articles of special interest feature Dr. Dora Stewart, J. R. Pratt, Elsie Shoemaker, Dr. Gladys C. Bellamy, Edna Muldrow, Dr. Grace Jencke, and Ivan Dean Cates--with a mention of Ruby Rogers Robertson. Authors of these articles, respectively, are H. H. Risinger, Dr. Benny Hill, Margie Cooke Porteus, Dr. Leroy Thomas, Betty Jo Jenkins Denton, Della Barnwell Whisenhunt, and Walter Crouch.

Featured in the July 1984 issue of OKLAHOMA WATER NEWS are Lorena Savage and L. L. "Red" Males. They were recently honored by the western Oklahoma community of Cheyenne with a special "Red and Lorena Males Day." Activities included a reception, softball tournament, and a parade along the newly christened "L. L. 'Red' Males Avenue." A rodeo, barbeque, and a "This Is Your Life" program topped off this special day.

Lorena is a graduate of Southwestern, and she and Red are the parents of Dr. Jim Males, also a Southwestern graduate. Red is the brother of Southwestern graduates Eunice (Mrs. J. R.) Males Gamble, Erick, and Erma "Frankie" (Mrs. Jack) Males Gray.

The Southwestern heritage is indeed a proud one!

Your newsletter, ECHOES FROM THE HILL, is filled with familiar names and interesting news of the Southwestern family, and I look forward to each issue.

Members present were: Kenneth New, Cecil Perkins, Millie Thomas, Ed Berrong, Tom Libby, Peggy Prock, Ron Polston, Dr. Joe Anna Hibler, Dr. Bob Brown, Dr. Leonard Campbell, Jerry Jones, Otis Sanders and Mark Mouse.

Dr. Joe Anna Hibler presided over the meeting in absence of President Johnny Beech.

Dr. Leonard Campbell, President of Southwestern Oklahoma State University, spoke about the financial situation at Southwestern and stated that the University was generally in excellent condition with the exception of the General Fund. This was due to the economic short-fall which has affected the entire state of Oklahoma. Dr. Campbell also presented plans for remodeling the Student Center, letting a contract for the music addition to the Fine Arts Building, and plans for a major push to remodel the men's dormitories.

Minutes of the February meeting were presented by Dr. Hibler. Motion was made by Dr. Campbell and seconded by Ed Berrong that the minutes be approved. Motion carried.

Millie Thomas presented a financial statement of the Alumni Association showing a balance of $43,219.49. Motion was made by President Campbell and seconded by Ed Berrong that the statement be accepted as presented and that Otis Sanders investigate placing a portion of the $16,058.70, which is in a Super Now checking account, at a higher rate of interest. Motion carried unanimously.

Otis Sanders reported that a booth for Southwestern had been displayed at the State Fair in Oklahoma City, Woodward County Teacher's Meeting, and Custer County Fair. He also told of his plans for a TV show on KWTW in Oklahoma City and Amarillo.

Ron Polston also reported about progress on the Lawton Satellite Chapter and their plans to sponsor a scholarship for Southwestern.

Dr. Bob Brown presented a brief report about the status of the Foundation at Southwestern. The Foundation began operation in 1979. It is governed by a seven-member board. The Foundation's present balance as of September 30, 1984, is $518,223.00. Dr. Brown stated that only interest is used from the Foundation with the greatest portion being used for Memorial Scholarships. Also $77,000.00 is earmarked for specific departments at SWOSU.

Dr. Hibler discussed plans for an appreciation banquet honoring all Foundation donors on March 23, 1985. After some discussion, a motion was made by Kenneth New and seconded by Ron Polston that we have a banquet for all donors. Motion carried unanimously. A motion was made by Ed Berrong and seconded by Kenneth New that the University use discretion in mailing invitations for the banquet.

Dr. Joe Anna Hibler presented plans for Homecoming '84. Otis Sanders stated that blankets have been ordered to be presented at the Alumni Luncheon on November 3, 1984. Awards will be made in three categories: alumni with most graduates from SWOSU, the one traveling the greatest distance for Homecoming, and the oldest attending. Mr. Sanders also announced Distinguished Alumni for '84: Rudie and Gladys Janzen, Dick Moore, and Dr. Louis Morris. Also the 1939 National Wrestling Team will be honored. Athletes from 1950-58 will also have a reunion, and both groups will sit together during the noon luncheon.

Dr. Hibler appointed Millie Thomas to be responsible for ticket sales, and Peggy Prock and Glenn Wright will be responsible for music.

Ed Berrong volunteered to purchase carpet for Southwestern Alumni Association's booth. Ed Berrong and Ron Polston made equal contributions of $150.00 to aid Southwestern Cheerleaders, to be matched by the University.

The next board of directors meeting will be held March 2, 1985, at 11:30 a.m. with a luncheon and business meeting.

State Regents Stiffen College Admission Rules

In a historic joint meeting, Oklahoma higher education and common school leaders unanimously approved stiff new academic requirements for admission into state colleges and universities.

"This move will enhance and improve education all across Oklahoma," State Superintendent John Folks declared.

Gov. George Nigh said the upgraded academic standards for college acceptance are "crucial to the future welfare of the state."

The new standards mandate a series of specific courses that college-bound high school students must take before admission is granted to an institution of higher education.

In addition, they spell out individual admission standards for the University of Oklahoma and Oklahoma State University, the four-year regional universities, and junior colleges.

The new standards go into effect in 1988, but they will immediately affect the academic preparation of thousands of high school freshmen.

The requirements ratified by the Higher Education Regents and the State Board of Education represent the first major changes in 22 years in college entrance prerequisites in the state.

The new standards--hammered out after a two-year study by higher education officials--stipulate that college-bound students must take 15 of 20 required academic units in predetermined areas.

Those include four units of English, three of mathematics, two in laboratory science, and two in history.

Four additional units must be taken in either computer science, economics, speech, geography, government, psychology, sociology, or a foreign language.

Currently, high school students have 10 required units and 10 units can be taken from "elective" courses.

The new standards strongly recommend, but do not require, that college-bound students take two years of a foreign language.

For students wanting to attend OU or OSU, they must either have a 3.1 grade point average, be ranked in the upper one-half of their graduating class, or have an American College Testing score of 17.

The grade point average for admittance into the regional universities will be raised to 2.8 from 2.5.

These changes go into effect for the 1985-86 academic year.

Oklahoma's junior colleges will still have an open enrollment policy, although mandated college-track courses must be taken by any students who want to transfer to four-year schools and pursue a baccalaureate degree.

"If our standards are lax, it is a cruel hoax we play on our children to send them to school for an education that will not make them competitive," Nigh told the first-ever combined board meeting.

Regents' chairman Bert Mackie said the new requirements "counteract more than 10 years of falling aptitude test scores and a non-comitant rise in high school grade point averages."

"If we are to achieve the kind of graduates from our colleges that we would like, our students should be able to undertake college-level work immediately and should not have to spend an extra semester or more taking remedial courses," Mackie said.

The new standards will allow probationary admittance and waivers for handicapped students or students who "demonstrate unusual talent in an area such as art, drama, or music."

The new standards have spawned concerns from some small, rural districts which lack the resources to provide an array of sophisticated math, science, and foreign language courses.

The State Department of Education has stated that rural districts may have to start educational cooperatives.

Foundation Receives Large Gift

The Southwestern Oklahoma State University Foundation received a gift of $74,564.40 from the Eva Leonard Estate. The gift that Mrs. Leonard provided in her will has been placed in the Marcrum-Leonard Scholarship Program. Mrs. Leonard established the scholarship program on August 27, 1981, with a $15,000 gift in memory of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Marcrum, and her husband, Bill Leonard. Interest earnings from the $89,565 fund will provide 18 Marcrum-Leonard Scholarships each year.

Mrs. Leonard grew up in the Hydro community and passed away in Monterey Park, Calif., on Oct. 28, 1981.

Fleming Sisters--112 Years in the Clinton Schools

JEWELL FLEMING

Children, chalk and challenges provided the essential ingredients for a fascinating and fulfilling life in the classroom for four sisters, all graduates of Southwestern Oklahoma State University. This fall, when the school bells rang in the new 1984-1985 school term for the public schools of Clinton, Oklahoma, it was the first time in 51 years that none of the Fleming sisters were among the faculty. Together, Miss Jewell Fleming, Mrs. Hazel Fleming Frymire, Mrs. Alma Fleming Hendrix, and Mrs. Pauline Fleming Rose had taught a total of 112 years in the Clinton Public Schools, not to mention their service in other districts.

All four sisters started their teaching careers in rural schools as teenagers. All became principals of these schools. All taught two years in rural schools before going to larger districts. All served on the faculty at Custer City, Oklahoma, their home town. Mrs. Hendrix recalls that she was one of twenty teachers at Custer City serving with Dr. Al Harris in the year he began the administrative career that lead him to become Southwestern's President.

Miss Fleming began teaching in the Clinton Schools when George Hann was superintendent, and continued for 37 years until reaching the mandatory retirement age for Oklahoma teachers. With 48 years of teaching experience and the hardy constitution of Oklahoma pioneer stock, Miss Fleming was not about to let an arbitrary boundary stand between her and the children and classrooms she loved. She began anew in the public schools of Fort Defiance, Arizona, where she added thirteen more years to her career before deciding it was time to "graduate from elementary school." After 61 years in the classroom, she says, "I have many precious memories. Each child had something new to teach me, and I tried to learn from them all." Then she quickly added,

PAULINE FLEMING ROSE

"Children really haven't changed much in 61 years. Each needs individual attention and reassurance. But the need for education is far greater now than when I began. The world is more complex."

Mrs. Rose began teaching in the Clinton Schools when Dr. Al Harris was superintendent. Retiring this past school term, she was the last of the four sisters to teach in Oklahoma schools. Upon retirement, she had the longest record of service in the Clinton School System, having served since 1947. Reflecting on the sisters' days in the classroom, Mrs. Rose said, "Much joy and satisfaction have come our way by seeing children grow and gain knowledge in a wholesome, homespun atmosphere, where each child had a sense of responsibility."

Mrs. Frymire joined the Clinton faculty when Dr. Don Owen was superintendent. Mrs. Frymire stressed that schools are for the boys and girls, not the teachers and administrators. Says Mrs. Frymire, "My sisters and I strived to devote ourselves each day to the benefit of the student. Teachers have been given a sacred trust, the education of the next generation. So much of one's life is influenced by early experiences. We sought to create a warm, stimulating atmosphere in which each child could develop a positive attitude about himself, about others, and about learning."

Mrs. Hendrix joined the Clinton faculty when Arnett Cross was superintendent. When asked if she could summarize the sisters' formula for success, Mrs. Hendrix said, "We tried always to be attune to the needs of each child, to never be too busy to stop and listen, to keep the classroom an exciting place to learn, and to involve students in activities that were fun and that aroused deep thinking. It is so important to help each child as an individual. No child should ever think he needs to go his way alone, for all need help and encouragement."

Mrs. Hendrix went on to say, "Our father and mother were great believers in education as the means to a better life. Much of what my sisters and I brought to the classroom is a reflection of lessons learned around the kitchen table in the warm glow of the coal oil lamp under the loving guidance of our pioneer parents. For education to truly be successful in producing well-rounded individuals, the schools must work in concert with the family and church. One of the most rewarding aspects of teaching in the Clinton Public Schools was the support of parents and local churches as partners in the education of Clinton youth."

The Fleming sisters have now all retired from the classroom. However, a new generation of educators from this family has taken to chalkboards, challenges, and children across the United States.

Alumni Honored In Cheyenne

On July 7, 1984, Roger Mills County observed L. L. "Red" and Lorena (Savage) Males Appreciation Day in honor of the contribution not only to that county but to western Oklahoma. The main street of Cheyenne was renamed the L. L. Males Avenue.

Red Males is known as the banker who helped Roger Mills back on its feet again. His desk is at the Security State Bank and is available to all people. Always a friend of the land, water, and agriculture, he had a dream come true when he saw the completion of the first Upstream Flood Prevention. This was known as the Sandstone Creek Area and covered 68,770 acres drainage. Following the 1934 Hammon flood when 17 lives were lost, he went to work on flood control and erosion. In 1944, his Washita Water Shed project was approved. The Soil Conservation project such as sowing blowing fields to grass and other projects to hold the soil, was another of the many agriculture promotions of Mr. Males for Roger Mills County.

L. L. "Red" Males was born in Rankin, which later became Redon. He attended Ship-Out School for the first eight grades and high school at Strong City. He went to work for the First State Bank in 1924 as a janitor and later as a bookkeeper.

In the late 20's, a new music teacher moved to Strong City. Her name was Lorena Savage. One of eight children born to E. B. and Mary Savage of Hammon, Lorena was a new graduate of Southwestern State College. As she tells the story, she questioned a friend about eligible men at Strong City after she knew she was going to teach there. She was told there were only two—one at the lumber yard and one at the bank. Before she moved to Strong City, Lee Wells at the lumber yard was spoken for by Nig Polk, and that left "Red" Males at the bank. When she got settled at Strong City, Lorena met him and "things turned out good."

Lorena's mother held the distinction of being the first coed to enroll at Southwestern State College. When Mary Mabry married E. B. Savage and began to raise a family which eventually consisted of eight boys and girls, the family push was always for education for the children.

While Red was promoting conservation with Lorena's support, she was raising their two boys, Jim, who is now a physician in Oklahoma City, and Bill, who is an innkeeper in Sweden. "I did all the things that mothers are supposed to do—Cub Scouts, band mothers, school programs, etc."

Lorena was also studying the piano and organ. She still takes lessons on both instruments. "I go once a month to Oklahoma City to OCU for lessons with Dr. Burg on the organ. I go once a week to SWOSU for lessons on the piano with Dr. Breckenridge. I keep learning all the time. I also learn from my students, who after all are my best teachers. I never believed they could be when my good friend, Lura Chalfant, who also taught piano, told me that. However, through the years, I find that I get so much from my students in the form of stimulation and elation at their progress."

Through her efforts, the Cheyenne school developed a program of choral music, and students have placed well in state, county, and area meets. Piano students earn awards through the continuing efforts of Lorena Males, who believes in them and their talents. "I try to work with each student to develop his or her individual talents. I believe everyone has some talents born in them. Some have talents in being plumbers, and some in music, and some in other fields, but I try to encourage each child to be the best they can in whatever they choose to do in life," states Lorena.

Four generations have attended Southwestern. Mary Mabry Savage was the first coed to graduate from SWOSU. Her daughter, Lorena, attended SWOSU, and her son, James, who is a medical doctor in the Oklahoma City Clinic, is the third member of the family to attend SWOSU. James has a son, Mike, who makes up the fourth generation to attend SWOSU. Southwestern Oklahoma State University says congratulations to the Males family. We are proud of you, and the honors are all deserving and past due.

Graft to Staff

American State Bank of Thomas announced the addition of Emet Graft to our staff as Assistant Vice-President.

American State Bank has long been a very strong supporter and investor in the agriculture part of this area and feel the addition of Emet will strengthen that. He has lived in and been involved with this area all his life.

Graft graduated from Custer City High School and received his Bachelor of Science and Master's degrees from Southwestern Oklahoma State University.

A very significant part of his experience with people was gained during the 11 years he served as high school principal at Leedey. During that time he served a term as president of the Dewey County Teacher's Organization.

Emet has spent the past year associated with the First State Bank of Camargo. His agriculture experience has come first-hand as he participated in a farming operation for the past 16 years.

Emet and Beth Anne were married in 1963. She graduated from Clinton and also received her B.S. and master's degrees from SWOSU. Mrs. Graft has taught in the Leedey school system for the last 11 years. She has been chosen Outstanding Woman of the Year for the Young Woman's Study Club of Leedey.

Leesa Anne is their 18-year old daughter and a graduate of Vici High School this year. She was an outstanding vocalist at Tri-State Festival in 1982 and will finish Beauty School this summer. Angella Beth is seven-years-old and will be in the second grade.

The family has a strong church background and are currently members of the First Christian Church of Camargo. Emet serves on the board, and Mrs. Graft is currently the youth director and formerly was the choir director at Leedey.

FORBIS' VISIT ALUMNI IN HAWAII

DOROTHY AND LARRY FORBIS

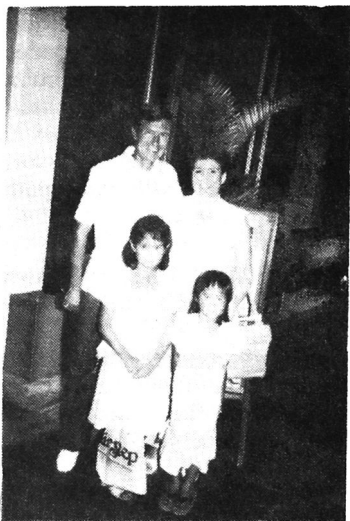

(Editor's Note: Larry Forbis, who taught in the Southwestern School of Pharmacy from 1963-71, and his wife, Dorothy, a business and elementary education graduate of Southwestern, recount their recent trip to Hawaii and the former students and friends they visited there. Dorothy is a lifetime member of the Alumni Association.)

On our recent trip to Hawaii we visited with Bob and Jo Ann Martin and daughters Amy and Ann in Hilo. Jo Ann is employed as a pharmacist at the local hospital, and Bob is working in the pharmacy for a Pay and Save, a large chain store in Hawaii. We missed seeing Pat Payne Snider in Kailua, another SWOSU graduate. We had breakfast with Yung and Eleanor Liu (a foreign student at SWOSU from Hong Kong and an SWOSU graduate). Yung has a pharmacy at Honokaa. We were unable to see Florence Yip (Ms. Stanley Tseng) in Honolulu. Florence was a foreign student from Koua at SWOSU and is a graduate of SWOSU School of Pharmacy.

While in Honolulu we were fortunate to see Dr. Jana Lou Scott, who was there with her niece. We flew home on the same plane with Susie Petrowsky, P. T. and Trey Minton, who were returning from Tahiti and Hawaii on their honeymoon.

Bob and Jo Ann Martin were instructors in the Pharmacy School for several years after graduating from SWOSU. Bob sent word to the pharmacy department to send him some new blood.

LAWTON AREA alumni attending were (l-r): Joe Hardiman, Neva Hardiman, Ron Polston, LaDonna Polston, Ken Graham, Al Terral, and Bill Reeves.

PICTURED ARE Lawton area Southwestern alumni that attended the satellite meeting. The group met at the Western Sizzlin Steak House and were greeted by the sign "Welcome SW State Bulldogs." The Lawton group pledged a $1000 scholarship, starting the 1985 fall term.

Officers for the Lawton Satellite Chapter are: Jim Jones, President; Bill Barker, Vice-President; and LaDonna Polston, Secretary. Reports about the progress of the University were given by Mark Mouse, Director of Placement and High School Relations; Cecil Perkins, Athletic Director, and Otis Sanders, Director of Public Relations.

Enthusiastic Alums Can Be Recruiters

Our alumni can be a gold mine to SWOSU, especially in the area of recruitment. Think of all the teachers, doctors, preachers, lawyers, and other business fields who have degrees from Southwestern and could be recruiting for SWOSU.

The SWOSU Alumni Association is very much alive and growing. There are over 1,000 members in the alumni association at the present time as compared to 300 two years ago. We need more alumni memberships.

We need to get our satellite chapters moving, and we need to form new chapters in other towns.

Encourage prospective students to attend Southwestern. Contact the Office of High School Relations about students you would like information sent to. Come visit us on College Days when we are in your area high school.

OIC Homecoming Game Set For Bulldogs

The championship of the Oklahoma Intercollegiate Conference could be at stake at this year's Southwestern homecoming game, which will pit the Bulldogs against the Rangers of Northwestern State. The game will be on Homecoming, Saturday, November 3, beginning at 2:00 p.m.

The Rangers, coached by Southwestern alum Woody Roof, were definitely the team to watch last season. Although they ended their season 4-6 and 2-2 in the OIC, the losses were narrow, and the Rangers led their opponents in virtually every category of overall statistics.

Southwestern had a disappointing 3-6 season in 1983, although they were able to beat the Rangers in Alva, 14-13.

After that led-down season,

Southwestern head coach Bob Mazie and his staff hit the recruiting trail, coming up with several major finds. Although the potential for an outstanding team belongs to the Bulldogs, Coach Mazie notes that playing experience for the team will determine their final record. Coach Mazie adds that his team is in good physical condition and that its depth is good should injuries not occur.

Coach Roof is fairly optimistic about the 1984 season for the Rangers, primarily because of his team's experience. With only four seniors lost from last year's lineup, the starting offensive and defensive teams are reasonably intact. Coach Roof also mentions a good recruiting year and that several freshmen could land starting positions.

Other than the usual OIC opponents, the Bulldogs and the Rangers have common opponents in Langston, Cameron, and Missouri Southern.

Southwestern alumni should not miss any other home games played by the Bulldogs this season. Their first game at home will be at 7:00 p.m. on Sept. 22 when they will meet Sam Houston. The next two weeks will find Southwestern playing in Weatherford--on the 29th, they will meet the Cameron Aggies, and on Oct. 6, a previously open date, they will play the University of Nuevo Leon of Monterrey, Mexico. Both games start at 7:00 p.m.

After the Homecoming game, the Bulldogs will finish their season at home with the East Central Tigers on Nov. 10.

SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

Alumni Game Set

The second annual Southwestern alumni baseball game will begin at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, October 27, on the Southwestern State University baseball diamond, according to baseball coach Larry Geurkink.

The first game, held in October 1983, was termed a gigantic success with some 55 former players participating. Ex-Southwestern coaches Jerry Jobe and Cecil Devine divided the teams up into even-odd graduating years and the "even" team posted a narrow 14-13 win. Among the highlights of the first game was the appearance of former Southwestern star pitcher Ray Burris, a success now with the Oakland As.

Anyone interested in playing in the alumni game should contact either Geurkink or Athletic Director Cecil Perkins.

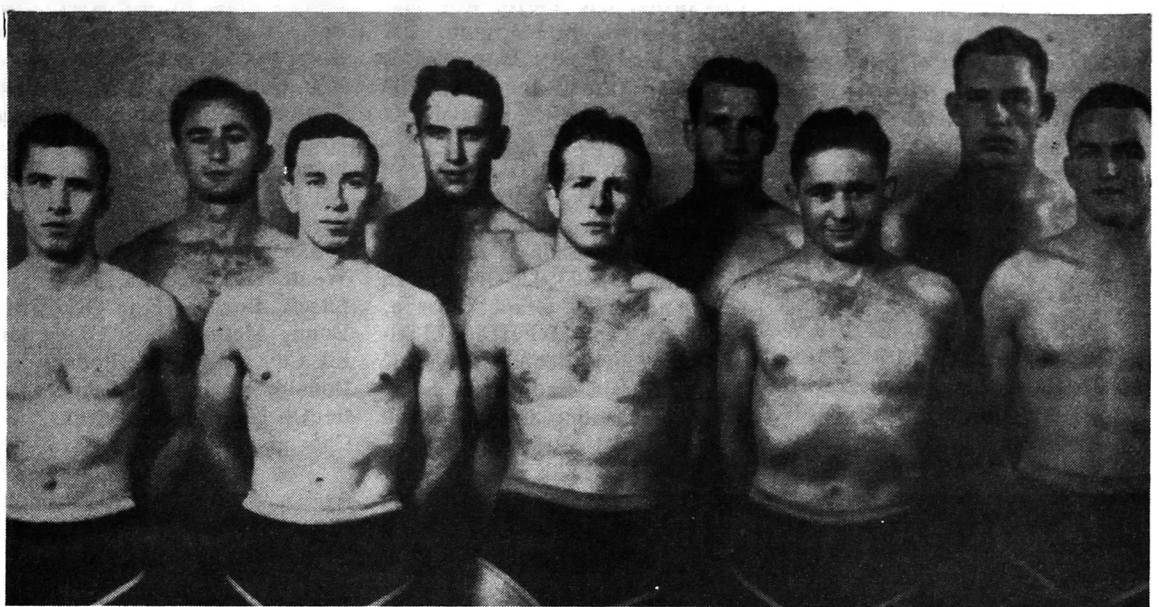

RAY BURRIS

Burris in American League

Former Southwestern star pitcher Ray Burris is enjoying a banner year with the Oakland A's. At this writing he has a 12-7 record and has one of the leading earned run averages in the American League.

Last year, Burris returned to his Alma Mater to participate in the Southwestern Alumni Baseball game.

1940 Southwestern Wrestling Team

With two national champions in the den, Southwestern's Bulldog wrestlers set out to conquer the mat world. In six dual matches, they were dumped twice by the national intercollegiate champion Oklahoma A&M Aggies but defeated such topnotch teams as Kansas State, Central, and the University of Oklahoma.

Although a sweatbox was his home, Wayne Johnson handled the 121-pound division all season. Jack Hess, a senior, enjoyed a successful season in the 128-pound groove. Captain Bill Renfro reported late and did not wrestle until the first A&M match but finished the season undefeated (his second unbeaten year) at the 136-pound post.

C. H. Nelson grappled every match but one at the 145-pound place. Doug Crothers appeared in the Central and A&M matches at 136-pounds. Richard Moore was the kingpin at 155-pounds, and the 165-pound chores were divided between sophomore Gene Bolding and senior "Choc" Cooper.

Denton Caves was dependable in the 175-pound scraps, but an ailing arm made him move over in favor of freshman C. A. Rose in two matches. "Mose" Sims, next year's captain, won four matches and tied two in his heavyweight role.

Next year Coach Jake Spann's charges will be minus the services of undefeated Bill Renfro, heroic Jack Hess, and colorful "Choc" Cooper, who get degrees.

Southwestern Displays

A view of the Southwestern Oklahoma State University display booth can be seen as it appeared at the 1983 Oklahoma State Fair. The purpose of this set-up, as well as others erected by the Public Relations office, is twofold: it helps alumni keep informed of happenings at Southwestern and it makes available materials to potential students.

The first display of the school year occurred in July at the Western Plaza Mall in Amarillo, Texas, where it remained for ten days. Other opportunities for display followed, including both the Woodward and Custer County Fairs. The display then moved to the Oklahoma State Fair, where it appeared in the Made in Oklahoma Building for the fourth year in a row. After the fair, a display will be made in Tulsa at the Oklahoma State Teacher's Meeting October 18 and 19.

During the rest of the year, the booth will travel across the state, appearing at Crossroads Mall in Oklahoma City on both October 20 and March 1 and 2; at the Oklahoma City Quail Springs Mall on November 9 and 10, and in Tulsa at the Woodland Hills Mall on February 1 and 2. On February 15 and 16, the display will appear at the Central Mall in Lawton.

Also on the display agenda for the public relations office will be the Oklahoma State High School FHA, FFA, Industrial Arts, and Phi Beta Lambda conventions.

The Office of Public Relations at Southwestern invites all alumni and friends to visit this part of our work and to share their questions or comments.

Heiberger Donates Painting

Jeannette Harris Heiberger, former Southwestern Oklahoma State University art student now working as a professional artist, stands by her work "Intertribal Pow-Wow," which she recently donated to the Al Harris Library on the campus of Southwestern.

Born in Weatherford, Jeannette studied painting with the late Carrie Goodrich and the late Merle Kelly at Southwestern. During World War II, she taught both in the Snyder Public Schools and privately.

After rearing and educating her children, she returned to serious painting, earning a degree at the Maryland College of Art and Design. She studied with Oscar Chelmsky, Chairman of the Painting Department there, whose works can be seen in numerous European and American Collections including the Museum of Modern Art in Paris and the Guggenheim Museum in New York.

Jeannette's exhibitions include: Quill and Brush Gallery, 1984; Gurmach Gallery, 1983; Group Show, Gudelsky Gallery, 1982; Art in Architectural Spaces, 1979-82; One Person Show, 1981, and Management Concepts: Faculty Exhibit and Traveling Show, Maryland College of Art and Design, 1979-80.

Describing her work, Jeannette says, "I adapt my geometric style to figurative subjects, using mainly acrylics, which have quick drying properties and which free me for the interplay of paint with mass. By pushing the paint over forms, through lines, over lines and through forms, I reach my objectives--ambiguity between abstraction and image."

Jeannette is the daughter of Ray Harris, former Southwestern standout athlete and is the sister of Marinelle Harris Ellinger who works in the Al Harris Library.
