

SWOSU Pink Out Night Raise $1,060 for Cancer Research

02.20.2009

These SWOSU Tau Kappa Epsilon members had a lot of fun with the "pink" theme throughout the night.

Michael Hixon (left), senior from Mustang, won a 32" HD flat screen TV, a wii and game set as part of the "Pink Out Night" activities. Two-year-old Emma Grace Ratteree and friend Chelsey Scheffler (right) were the ones who drew Hixon's winning ticket. Also pictured is SWOSU Dean of Students Cindy Dougherty.

It was a night of excitement when SWOSU hosted "Pink Out Night" February 18 at the university's basketball games to raise money for cancer research. The Collegiate Activities Board raised $1,060 by selling the ever-popular "Tough Enough to Wear Pink" t-shirts.