DASH to the Dawg Fun Run was held on September 7th on SWOSU campus. It was a 1-mile dash around campus, starting at the SWOSU Building, located at the clock tower. Runners run through campus, and finish in the dash running through the big blow-up bulldog, located in the Wellness parking lot.

SWOSU fall enrollment numbers up 4.1 percent

Southwestern Oklahoma State University’s enrollment for the 2016 fall semester once again shows an increase in students for both the Weatherford and Sayre campuses.

SWOSU enjoyed an increase of 4.1% from the 2015 fall semester and is the third straight year for a fall semester enrollment increase.

SWOSU President Randy Beutler and the overall head count enrollment is 5,354.

“Always, our primary goal at SWOSU is student success, and we are pleased to serve those who choose to attend SWOSU at Weatherford and Sayre,” Beutler said.

“They are help and our 14 nationally-accredited academic programs continue to make SWOSU an attractive place for students.”

The Weatherford campus has 5,040 students and the Sayre campus has 646 students, noting that some students take classes on both campuses. The 646 on the Sayre campus is the highest enrollment in at least 20 years, according to SWOSU-Sayre Registrar Terry Biley.

SWOSU is observing Campus Safety Awareness Month during the month of September. Cindy Daugherty, dean of students and Title IX coordinator, said four large rolling story boards are being used across campus to promote all types of safety. She said there will be lectures and discussions throughout the month on all kinds of issues such as human sexuality, substance and tobacco use.

All three MSN degrees offer the student 24-hour, seven-day-a-week access to technology for the 2017 spring semester, which begins December 5 and ends July 15.

All MSN students must meet SWOSU admission and graduate admission requirements. Tinner said the M.S.N. curriculum builds upon previous nursing and general education coursework and is designed to support educational mobility and to strengthen professional growth and leadership abilities of nurses.

The Southwestern Fall 2016

This Southwestern is the student newspaper of Southwestern Oklahoma State University. To publish a letter Wednesday during the fall and spring semesters, except during holidays and finals week. Students in the editing class serve as writers, editors, and art directors in the news gathering and design process as writers.

The editorial board meets every Wednesday at 3:00 p.m. in the Student Union, Room 213.

This Southwestern is a non-profit newspaper printed on recycled paper. The school’s name is printed in red ink to support the op-posing views. The opinion expressed within signed editorials are the opinions of the writers. The opinion expressed within unsigned editorials are the opinions of the staff. Neither is necessarily the opinion of the university administration, faculty, or students.

Yogurt Corner revamped, name changed

By Amber Bachiochi

What was previously known as the Yogurt Corner in the Student Union is now Brandy’s Grab & Go.

The store still offers frozen yogurt and toppings, but additional items are now available there as well. This includes things like: pizza, sandwiches, wraps, a variety of sides and drinks, and sushi made fresh at SWOSU cash morning.

“The bigger benefit to students is that we have the ability to expand the lines over here,” said Mike Davis, Student Union and food services supervisor.

Brandy’s also has a microwave for student use and will likely be providing gluten-free items in the future. Students have begun responding to the change, and that input is something they would like to continue receiving.

“So far it’s been really positive, so that’s great,” he said. “We hope to put on a suggestion box, as well.”

Brandy’s is open M-Th 10-8 and F 10-5. Brandy’s is open M-TH 10-8 and F 10-5. Union is now Brandy’s Grab & Go. Additional items are now available in the Fine Arts Center and Jefferson Hall.

Wet dawgs: water line break soaks campus

A main water line was broken Thursday afternoon, causing water to pour across campus.

For a short time, water was available in campus buildings south of Davis Street, except for Oklahoma Hall. Restroom facilities remained available in the Fine Arts Center and Jefferson Hall. The issue was resolved later in the day.

NEWS

The Constitution was made for the people and not the people for the Constitution.

Theodore Roosevelt

According to the DAWG’s website, the purpose of Constitution Week is to:

- Emphasize citizens’ responsibilities for protecting and defending the Constitution
- Inform people that the Constitution is the basis for America’s great heritage and the foundation for our way of life
- To encourage the study of the historical events which led to the framing of the Constitution in September 1787.

Constitution Day is officially observed on September 17th.

FEATURES HOW I fall into fiction world

By Jennifer Steiner
Staff Reporter

Labor Day weekend is over which means we will not see another extended break until Fall Break in October comes around. Some students went home for the weekend to see their loved ones and get an actual home-cooked meal, (don’t worry, we won’t tell mom the reason you wanted to go home), worked, or, like me, played video games. I may be a full-time student, carry two jobs, and a full-time wife but I always have time for a book, a game, or something on the TV.

So, why do I game?

Well, I’m an avid gamer and grew up playing with my three older brothers. I was taught to love a good story from a young age and I think the reason I love video games so much is that they transport me to different worlds. While I love reading, there is something about a video game that gets my creative mind firing off.

I also like the fact that video games have a story. Some video games have great stories, even if they are fantasy, that keep me engaged in the story. I enjoy the fact that in video games I can shape the story to my liking. In books, I cannot change the story. In video games, I can make the story my own.

I think it is the virtual reality element of video games that I enjoy. I can step into a new world and become a part of it. I can become the hero of the story and have my own adventure.

I also enjoy the fact that video games are constantly evolving. The storylines change and the games themselves change to keep us engaged. I think it is this element that keeps me playing video games.

So, why do I game? I game to escape into a new world and become a part of it. I game to challenge my mind and to keep my creative juices flowing. I game to have fun and to enjoy the world around me.

Meet the Professor

Meet Dr. Lisa Boggs. She is the Associate Professor of the Biology department at SWOSU. Dr. Boggs has been a professor here since 1992. She is originally from Nebraska (Go Huskers) where she received her bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Chadron State College in Chadron, NE. Dr. Boggs finished up her PhD at the University of Wyoming in 2003. If you have ever been a student of Dr. Boggs, you know that class by her side is her service dog, Duncan, (named after her)(1) which she uses for her hearing. Dr. Boggs is hearing impaired and has cochlear implants. Dr. Boggs is very involved in helping her husband, Dr. Bosch, being a professor here since 1992.
