Southwestern Oklahoma State University students are being sought to help SWOSU with its 2016-17 marketing campaign.

The university will produce new promotional and advertising materials this spring. Several students will be selected for inclusion in video, radio and printed materials, including both on-camera and voice-over opportunities.

Students who are interested should upload current full-color head and full-body shots and fill out the form at: <http://www.swosu.edu/administration/pr-m/audition-form.aspx>

SWOSU is also looking for voice-over actors for radio and television spots.

All ethnicities are encouraged to apply. The deadline is Friday, March 11. Principals will receive monetary compensation. Applicants must be SWOSU students in good standing with the University and must be available for a full day of shooting on April 20. An audition day will be held March 22 on the SWOSU campus.
