Special Campus

The Old Science Building, one of the oldest on campus, is often referred to as "The building with the white pillars."

Looking around Southwestern's campus, it is clear that practically everything is done with a special touch. It has been that way from the 1901 birth of Southwestern Normal School and was no different in 1984-85.

Over 4,900 students were attracted to Southwestern because the university had much to offer academically, financially, socially and sportwise.

The School of Pharmacy, top-rated pharmacy program in the state, attracted many students. Other academically-minded students were kept busy and challenged by the more than 1200 course curriculum.

Financially, Southwestern was the most affordable school in Oklahoma. For students working their way through school, the lowest tuition in the state and the reasonable room and board rates were especially welcome.

Dances kept the students active socially, as well as activities in seven Greek organizations and more than sixty organizations. Students were encouraged to become involved in many activities through the special touch of organization leaders and members.

From football to intramural sports, students were involved actively by playing or cheering.

From the old bricks of the Y Chapel to the modern architectual design of the new Fine Arts Center, the Bulldog campus was uniquely special.

Special Friends

Melody King meets some of her friends while repelling down a cliff near Weatherford.

Special moments with special friends were often the case on this university's campus.

During the course of the year, students had the opportunity to meet new friends in classes, at dances, at organization meetings, and in the Student Center.

Little sisters and brothers in the social organizations were often pampered as they adjusted to the university, then considered close friends as they made their way through the four years of campus life.

Roommates, whether in dorms or apartments, often became like family, sharing trials and tribulations of school work.

Many memories were made, and many of the special times at Southwestern will never be foregotten by the many special friends on campus.

Special Recreation

Active students were a very special part of every day life at Southwestern. Many students participated in sports activities such as football, baseball, and basketball, while others just ran downtown to ride the go-carts, see a movie, or drag Main Street.

No matter the activity the student was involved in, they always seemed to enjoy it to the fullest. Students on campus often put down their schoolwork for a few minutes just to play a game of touch football, volleyball or weightlifting.

Special recreation — Southwestern students played everything with a spirit only a university could hold.

Special Activities

Classwork often involved extra, special activities on campus. Courses often would require the students to teach a class to area youngsters or work in the lab. All of these activities added a special touch to the curriculum.

Computers were in full force on campus; therefore, many students became involved in the area of computer science. These courses allowed the students to spend time in the university's computer center working programs for classwork as well as personal use.

Many students in the area of science and pharmacy were able to spend time in labs during the week experimenting with new materials-anticipating a desired result.

Education courses required students to teach others. This included peers as well as younger students. Student teaching assignments of eight weeks were required to complete a degree in education.

Often the special activities were off campus. Class members in sports often traveled to other universities for games. Water sportsmen traveled to Crowder Lake for many activities, as well as the Weatherford City Pool during the summer months.

Each student was involved in a special activity. Whether it included planting trees for a zoology class or writing a story for the school newspaper, students completed the tasks with a special touch.

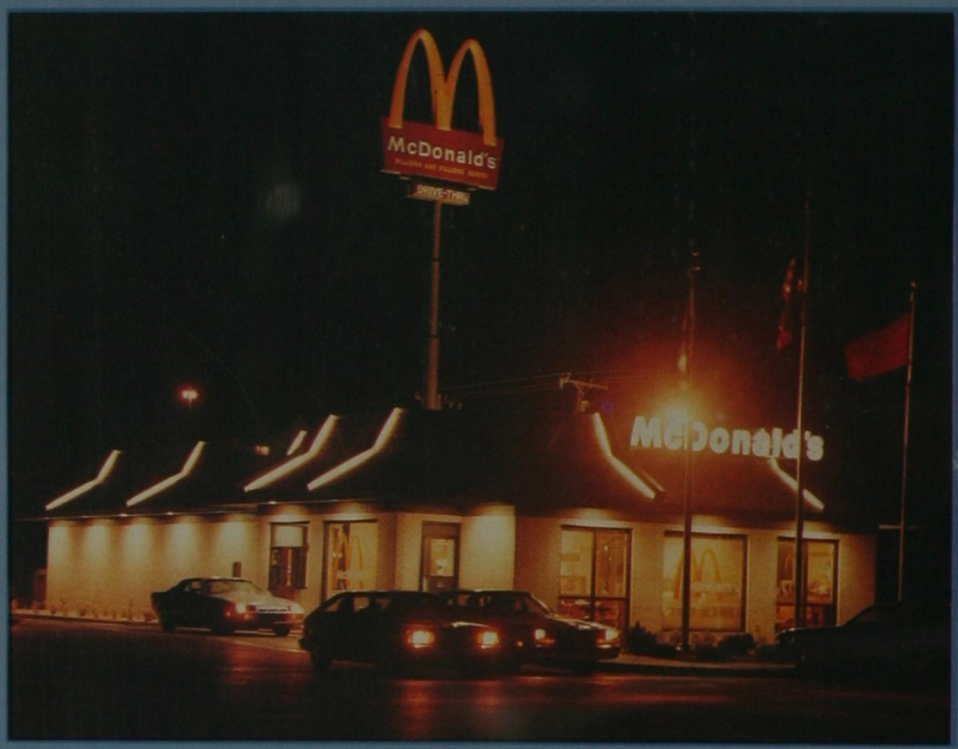
Special Places

Weatherford, a friendly town of about 13,000 catered to the needs and desires of Southwesterners. From "buy one, get one free" pizza coupons to "get in free with a university ID," Weatherford merchants supported the school wholeheartedly.

Discounts were often the case if a student only had a university Identification card ready. Ten, fifteen, even twenty percent discounts were given for a variety of products with the ID.

McDonald's was new in Weatherford, along with Big Cheese Pizza. Students often took the opportunity to visit these and other special places in and around the Weatherford area.



Above right: The addition of McDonald's was an occasion celebrated by most of the student body. Late night Big Macs provided extra energy for studying. Right: The Bat Caves, located near Corn, gave adventurers a chance for excitement.

Administration And Faculty Take The Lead In E•D•U•C•A•T•I•O•N

After a cutback in the university budget, and a cutback in student workers and supplies, the nationwide economic strain was felt by the university.

Adjusting to the situation at hand, instructors lead students through a maze of semester work. Quizzes, projects, mid-term tests, and finals made the students ready for Christmas Break and the closing of school.

The pressure of daily class would be off for awhile, allowing students, and faculty members, a chance to relax and attempt to catch up on all the things that seemed to get lost in the shuffle of the school year.

Serving Students For More Than 22 Years

Margarette Lumpkin retires After assisting six registrars And thousands of university students In the Admissions Office

After being a first-hand part of more than 22 years of change, seeing the coming of the computer age, and watching the comings and goings of thousands of students, Southwestern Admissions Coordinator Margarette Lumpkin retired in October.

Lumpkin, who had been Admissions Coordinator for the last five years and participated in almost every aspect of working in the registrar's office, cited as the most rewarding part of her career, "Working with the students, seeing the pride as they better themselves and go through the line at graduation, and feeling I had a part in that."

Though two decades passed during her presence in the office, Lumpkin pointed out that students are still basically the same. The only difference that she pointed out was that students were a bit more aggressive academically. "They do seem to be more eager to do well in school in the last ten years. I guess from the economy," Lumpkin mentioned.

Since beginning work as a secretary, Lumpkin has seen a number of changes in the school itself. "It's changed very much with computers and such," she stated. She also mentioned that there seems to be a trend in that, "a lot of older and former students are coming back to finish their education."

As Admissions Coordinator, Lumpkin handled transfer students, admissions of new students, and correspondence on incoming students. Another part of her job was to make students feel comfortable in their new surroundings.

Prior to a move to Tucumcari, N.M., where she plans to enjoy her retirement, Lumpkin was honored at a reception in recognition of her outstanding contributions to the University. In an effort to show appreciation for 22 years of outstanding service, she was awarded a plaque engraved with the names of the six registrars who she served under during her years at Southwestern.

Groups Help Students Meet New Friends And Get

I•N•V•O•L•V•E•D

Organizations gave the students an extra special touch in the area of involvement. Organizations planned activities for the campus-such as outdoor and indoor dances, movies, picnics, and skating parties.

With a special attitude, Student Senate hosted two blood drives in the Student Union. Recruiting students to work as well as give blood were all part of the effort put into the successful drives.

The ROTC hosted opening day ceremonies all over campus on the first day of the fall semester. Military equipment was put on display as well as a parachutist falling from the sky. Helicopter rides were given to those wishing to see the campus from the air.

Religious organizations sponsored noon hour and evening meetings to guide students through the religious facet of their lives, as well as school work. Fellowship among students occurred inside the many meeting places and all over campus.

The key was working together for overall improvement. Campus organizations brought students together to help improve themselves and the campus with special feelings.

We're Watching Your Figures

Accounting Club informed students of opportunities in accounting and joined all accounting classes in fellowship. They also gave the students knowledge of the working world. The Accounting Club kept busy by having monthly meetings with several guest speakers including Arther Anderson from Big 8 Accounting Firm, and Andy Wilkes, a local CPA.

Among other activities held by the Accounting Club, were a picnic to welcome students back, and an annual Christmas party.

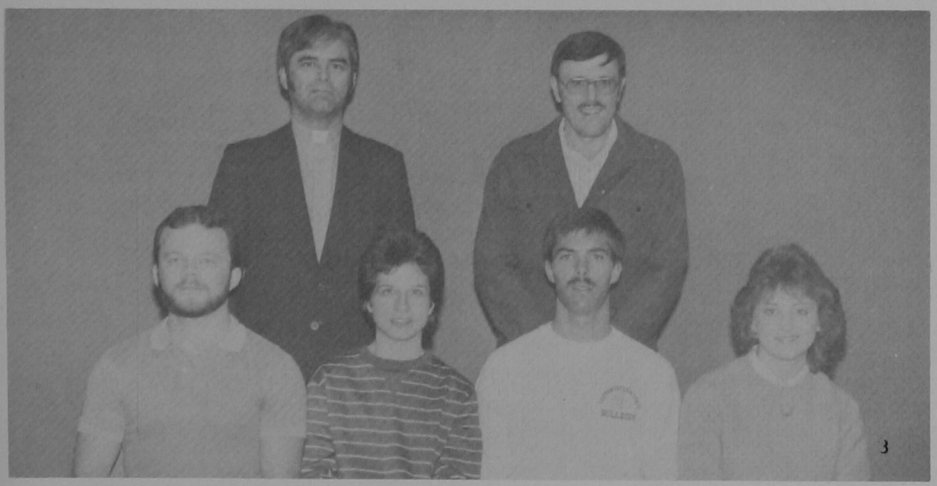
Constant Activity



Gamma Delta's highlight for the year was their first place win during Homecoming Parade. The Gamma Delta float was just one of the many exciting things with which the club became involved.

Gamma Delta Lutheran was a Christain organization sponsored by Our Savior Lutheran Church and was open to everyone. During the year, they had weekly meetings where they gathered for supper and fellowship.

They took weekend water skiing, fishing, and camping trips, had a snow skiing trip, sponsored a concert, and led the Church service one time during the semester.

Supporting The Fine Arts

Alpha Digamma Alpha, a fine arts service fraternity, served the campus by encouraging the advancement of all areas of the fine arts. The fraternity held weekly meetings each Monday, as well as working at various projects such as the Arts Festival held at Means Park.

This campus' chapter of Alpha Digamma Alpha was the national headquarters of the fraternity. It was also the newest fraternity on campus.

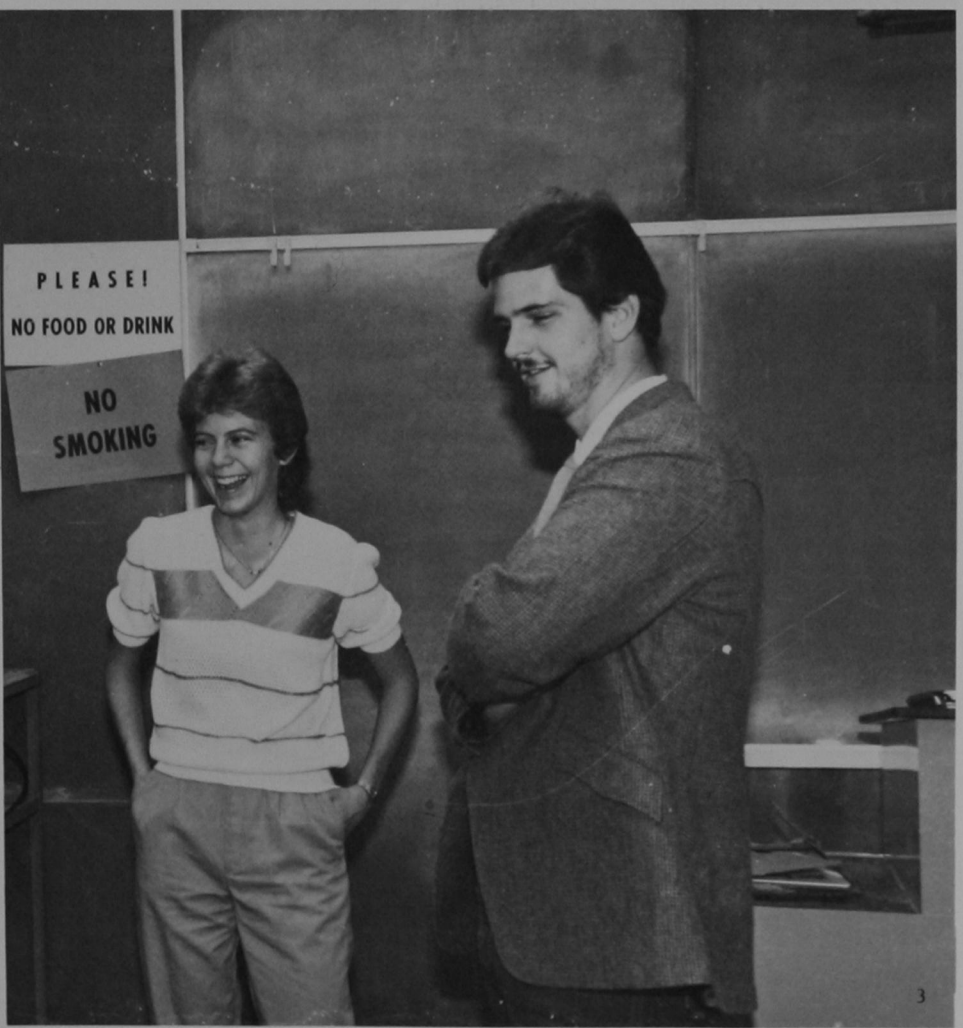
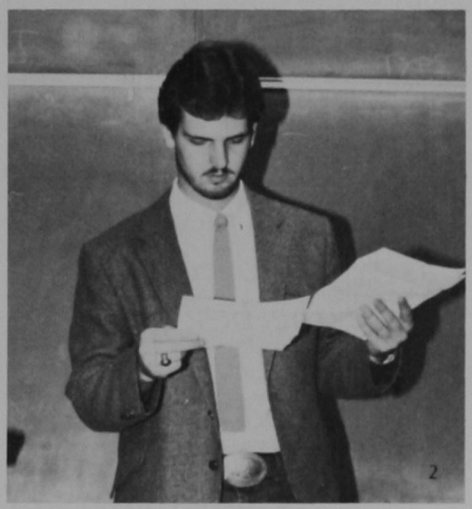
Keeping In Touch With Business

Alpha Kappa Psi contributed to the individual welfare of its members and the welfare of the university with which the chapter resided. They also promoted the fields of commerce, accounting, and finance along with other courses leading to degrees in business administration. They interacted with the public and created better relations between the School of Business and the public.

Alpha Kappa Psi enjoyed the initiation of sixteen pledges into membership in the spring.





"It takes hard work and a lot of time to be a member, but the rewards are numerous."

Performing To Perfection

Alpha Psi Omega's year started off well with a picnic held in the home of Claude Kezer. The picnic was held for the new members and also was an opportunity to elect officers.

The group participated in the productions Lu Ann Hampton Laverty Oberlander and Ten Little Indians.

On Halloween they painted faces for children at Wal-Mart and the green room. They also painted faces at the Arts Festival.

In February Alpha Psi Omega participated in their major production, Oklahoma, which was the first of its kind to be held in the new Fine Arts Center.

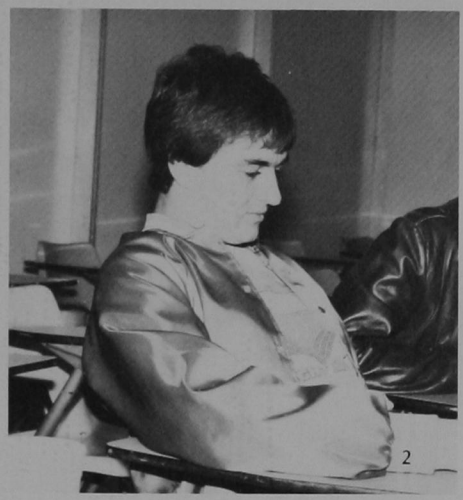
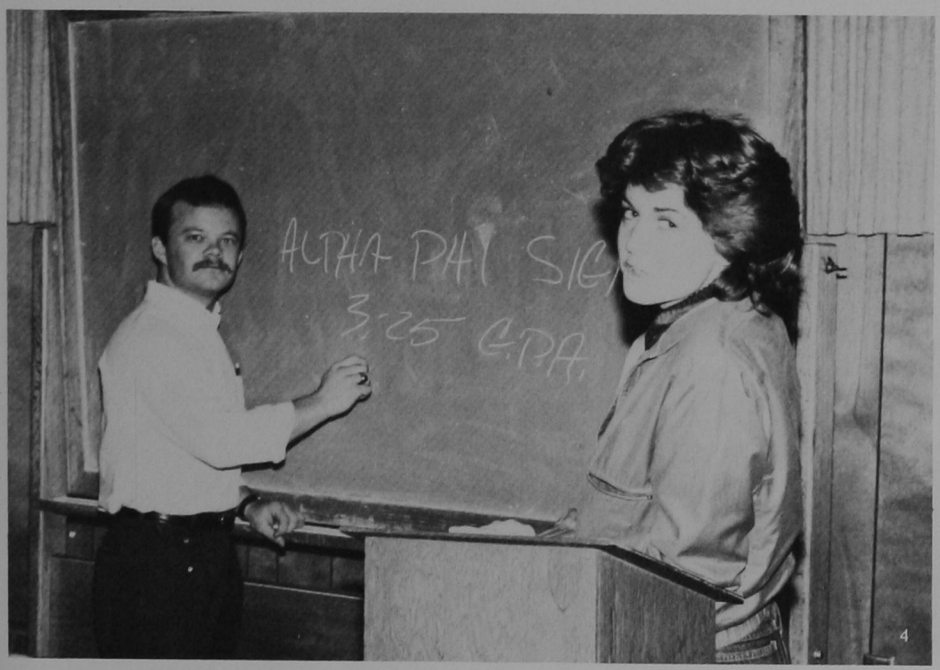
Declaring Intelligence





Alpha Phi Sigma, a national honorary fraternity, had as its purpose the encouragement of learning and the recognition of scholarship. The 15,000 nationwide members of Alpha Phi Sigma belonged to 22 local chapters.

The Data Chapter of Alpha Phi Sigma was originally chartered in 1934. The fraternity was founded to give preferment and honor to those who strived to set up a high standard of scholarship, fine thinking, ideals, and correct spiritual values. Alpha Phi Sigma was open to any university student who had earned 45 semester credit hours with an accumulative minimum grade point average of 3.25.

Alpha Phi Sigma was the small-college equivalent to Phi Beta Kappa which was the nation's top honor fraternity.

During the year, they co-sponsored Political Heritage Week, an election year educational seminar series.

"Alpha Phi Sigma is designed to encourage the fellowship of Southwestern students who strive for academic success."

— Kurt Winden
Treasurer

Not All Cut And Dried

A biology major was not a requirement for Beta Beta Beta. Johnny Rodriguez, president, stated, "The purpose of the Biology Club is to give anyone interested in biology a chance to get together for different activities." These activities included speakers from various fields in biology making presentations, taking canoeing trips, camping trips, and other ventures.

Blood drives and plant sales were a few of the rougher fun times the Biology Club participated in. Fundraisers and community projects were almost necessities for every organization. Beta Beta Beta did their part.

Someone had to make calm from possible chaos and these people were known as the officers. The president was Johnny Rodriguez; vice-president, Jeff Rother; secretary, Melinda Russell; historians, Micki Ratzlaff and Rob Harder; and treasurer, Brenda White.

"The Biology Club is not only an organization for biology majors, but for anyone interested in biology. Members of the club always find that the gatherings are a lot of fun and usually very interesting."

— Johnny Rodriguez

A Christian Experience

Sitting on the southeast corner of the campus is the Baptist Student Union. Here, as many as 200 students gathered each day to participate in Christian-oriented activities and fellowship.

Among the many activities sponsored by the BSU were a Howdy Party featuring Three-in-One in concert, a freshman welcome party, Noonday, a 20 minute time of worship and fellowship each day from 12:30 to 12:50, and IMPACT '84 with Tierce Green.

"BSU is a fellowship of college students seeking to find and implement God's purpose for them and their world."

— BSU member

Putting It All Together

Nothing but hard work and self-determination went into the yearbook pages this year. The dedicated staff worked desperately to meet the required deadlines. With the help and encouragement of editor, Debbie Duerksen, all of the pages were completed in time.

From cropping pictures to writing copy, this crew covered all organizations on campus. They worked long days and many nights getting their pages put together.

None of these pages could possibly have been completed had it not been for the photographers. They had to give up lots of their own time on short notice to take pictures for a certain deadline.

Chemistry Club — A Real Reaction

The Chemistry Club had another feather to put in their caps. They were responsible for the Oklahoma chapter of the American Chemical Society's Meeting-in-the-Miniature this year. But then again, these chemists were always proud of another adorning feather.

The Chemistry Club was organized to help inform, educate, and encourage chemistry majors and minors. Preparation for the job market or graduate school was a main goal for the club. They also thirsted for knowledge of the latest developments in the field of chemistry. The club provided those interested with the opportunities.

Among opportunities offered, a chance for fun was also taken. The club held a joint watermelon feast with the Biology Club in August and their annual Christmas dinner along with the club's monthly meetings.

The Spiritual Growth

Providing fun and fellowship of college students, the Catholic Student Association was a way for Catholic students to grow spiritually in the company of friends.

St. Eugene's Church received a new priest, Father Ben Zoeller, as well as a new name.

The Catholic Student Association participated in Intramural softball, in the CROP Walk, and in a raffle to raise money for their organization.

The Catholic Student Association met each Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m.

Share With The Chair

Whether one calls it the Bible Chair or Chi Sigma Omega, the Church of Christ Student Center was a major part of the lives of many students on campus.

The Bible Chair endeavored to create a Christian atmosphere for college students through fellowship and various activities such as volleyball and singing at the Littlebird's Nursing Home. Devotionals were held each Thursday evening at the Student Center as well as Wednesday evening Bible study at the Church of Christ every week.

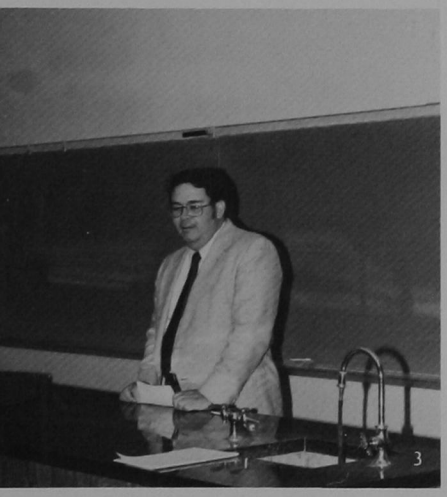
Learning A New Language



Because of the high rise in the interest of computers and computer science, the Computer Club was a great success on campus. Many students who were interested in computers and computer science joined together to share ideas and findings about computers.

The club was designed to promote increased knowledge of the science, design, development, languages, and applications of modern computer science. The group gathered to promote a greater understanding and interest in computing and its applications.

Computer Club strived to help students understand that computers could be used in many different applications from office to home and school use. Meetings were held to give students an opportunity to learn more about computers than could be absorbed in the classroom.

Literary Enlightenment

The English Club consisted of students who were interested in English, literature, or writing. The club promoted the field of English to both majors and minors or anyone who was interested.

As a fundraiser, the group had a bake sale at the production of Lu Ann Hampton Laverty Oberlander. Being a western production, they dressed Texan and sold Texas style cookies.

They also had a book sale in the Student Union, which proved to be highly successful.

At Christmas, the club had a party at Eleanore Waggoner's house, in which they all brought different foods and had a good time.

Pharmacy With A Purpose

Institutional Pharmaceutical Association had many goals and an important purpose. IPA's purpose was to promote hospital and institutional pharmacy on campus.

IPA had a record-setting membership. Since the founding of the club in 1978, the membership count had never been so high.

IPA strived to inform the members of the various facets of institutional pharmacy by hosting speakers and sponsoring tours to area hospitals and institutions.

Students joining this organization came out well-informed and ready for a position in the world of pharmacy. Other than these activities, some IPA members also participated in the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists' mid-year meeting in December at Dallas.

IPA was the student affiliate organization on campus for the Oklahoma Society of Hospital Pharmacists. IPA also joined Southwestern Pharmaceutical Association for a meeting.

A Promotion To Advancement

To promote women in pharmacy was the main purpose of the Kappa Epsilon members. As a club devoted to women and their advancement in this field, Kappa Epsilon held meetings and activities which pertained to their goal.

A Drug Fair in the Student Union was one of the intellectually inclined activities the club sponsored. A car wash in September and a spaghetti dinner in November were some of the more popular events. In the spring, the members held a Rock-A-Thon fund raiser.

Memberships were important to every organization. Kappa Epsilon's membership peaked at over 55 members by the end of the fall — quite an accomplishment for any organization, especially one that consisted of only females.

Over Twenty Years Of Dedicated Service

Professional pharmacy students were given the opportunity to advance themselves in their field through the Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity.

Kappa Psi was the largest and oldest professional pharmacy fraternity on campus, according to Gabriel Guijarro, president. The Delta Beta Chapter of Kappa Psi moved into its second twenty years of dedicated service to the profession of pharmacy and to its members.

Kappa Psi kept members on their toes. Hypertension screenings at the Senior Citizen's Hut each first and third Monday of the month and another screening at Wal-Mart were some of the activities Kappa Psi held. Participating in the Homecoming Parade and in intramural football were also some activities of the organization.

Promoting The Importance Of Math

Kappa Mu Epsilon was a national Honor Society. The purpose of the organization was five-fold: to further the interests of mathmatics in those schools which place their primary interests on the undergraduate program; to help the undergraduate realize the important role that mathematics had played in the development of western civilization; to develop appreciation of the power and beauty possessed by mathematics, due, mainly, to its demands for logical and rigorous modes of thought; to provide a society for the recognition of outstanding achievement in the study of mathematics at the undergraduate level; and to disseminate the knowledge of mathematics and to familiarize the members with the advances being made in mathmatics.

Activities were an important part of the curriculum for the organizations. Members made up the microbiology packets for the microbiology lab. One of their meetings included a prestigious guest speaker, who was the Medical Technology Program Director at St. Anthony's Hospital.

As an honor society, Lambda Tau was exclusively for Medical Technology majors. The group provided an educational surrounding for students.

"Lambda Tau is an honor society where people with the same interests can meet and talk with different program directors of hospitals, people who are already in the field, and other guest speakers."

Marching Band Was A THRILLER

The band went through adjustments this year. After serving approximately twelve years as band director, Dr. J.W. Jurrens turned the job over to Dr. Richard O'Briant, a graduate of Texas Tech. The members had many comments on various changes to which they had to conform.

There were over 150 members in the band including ten members of flag corps, and two twirlers, Laura House and Ilene Zander. The drum major was senior Randy Brooks and his assistant was junior Keith Garrison.

The Band highlighted the year in American style with a tribute to the Twenty-third summer Olympiad, a format of songs by the rising rock star Michael Jackson, plus a starstudded fireworks spectacular.

This organization helped during the year with various music contests on campus and judged high school activities ranging from piano contests to large choirs. Their purpose was to give music education majors a chance to meet with public school directors and get ideas on teaching. They also kept a vast interest in junior and senior high level music programs. On campus activities of the chapter were participation in state, division and national meetings of MENC.

Record Club Gets Involved

Medical records hold much importance for the members of Mu Rho Alpha. Their purpose was to promote the Medical Record Administration Program and the members certainly did their part.

Mu Rho Alpha members did not center their lives around the work part of the program. They had various other activities to keep them occupied. For example, an Alumni Tea was held on Homecoming morning, and the members enjoyed a picnic in September and a Christmas Dinner.

Special speakers and regular classes taught the members about records and health care. Therefore, this organization was also a good learning experience for those who got involved, and involvement was the key word.

"Through this institution, pass the greatest medical records administrators in the world."

For the past several years, the fraternity has sponsored a diabetes screening test for the community. They have also helped with the Annual Health Fair and other community projects such as sponsoring bingo games at the Weatherford Nursing Center.

Longer Name — No Problem

Having gone through a dignified name change, the Physics, Engineering, and Geological Society faced the change and came out on top.

A problem was definitely not a thing that could have hindered the club or its members. Winning many national awards such as outstanding chapter, Bendix, and Marsh White Awards for projects were highlights for the club. Such accomplishments did not go unnoticed.

The Physics, Engineering, and Goelogical Society kept themselves quite busy with their many activities during the year. A Physics Funatorium, an Omniplex trip, a guest speaker from Texas Instruments, a trip to the regional meeting of the Society of Physics Students, a NASA tour, a pizza party, a Shish-ke-bob, and a Physics, Engineering and Geology Day for high school students were some of the events scheduled in order to keep the members busy.

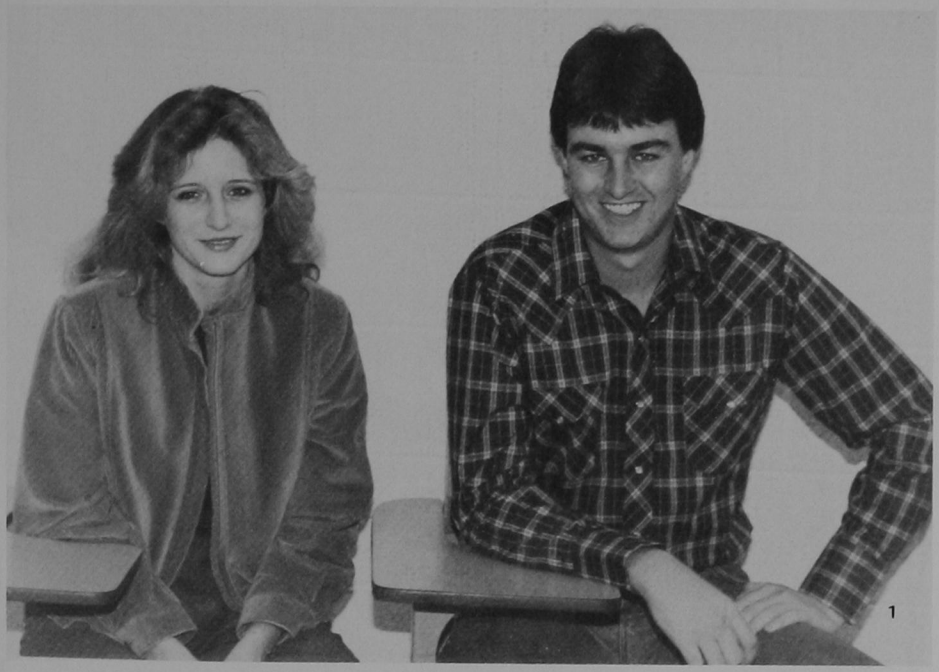
Working To Be Better Citizens



The Political Science Association, an organization for students and faculty interested in public affairs and political science, promoted fellowship and scholarship and helped to form a more intelligent, aggressive, and dedicated citizen.

The PSA had many interests. These included the Broadside newspaper, Law Day, and monthly meetings. Law Day was formed to give students an opportunity to hear different speakers discuss law. It originated in Oklahoma.

Political Science Association served as a pre-law club for those who intended to go to law school.

Ready For The Challenge

The purpose of Reserve Officers Training Corp was to promote professionalism in a military oriented environment.

Students who participated in ROTC left the campus with not one document of honor but two — their diploma and their commission.

A commission meant that they would have a shot at a good job, getting thirty days paid vacation every year. Traveling would be one great advantage as well as managing resources, leading people and influencing lives.

Some of the activities for the year included a Mardi Gras Parade, Awards Ceremony, ROTC FUN RUN, and the Military Ball.

During the event, military equipment and displays were presented on campus for students to view. Free helicopter rides and refreshments were provided by the Oklahoma National Guard, who cooperated with the department. Purpose of ROTC Day was to create an awareness of ROTC activities and programs and allowed students a final opportunity to register for Military Science classes.

Striving For Excellence

"The fundamental objective of Rho Chi has always been to promote the advancement and recognition of sound scholarship," said Brent Bergen, president of Rho Chi on the purpose of the organization.

Excellence in pharmacy was important to Rho Chi members. Any person who desired a profession dealing with pharmacy would have found this organization very useful. The requirements were stiff, but the experience was well worth it.

Rho Chi was very involved with scholarly attainments and this attitude was reflected in the work and studies of the members. Meetings were filtered with various speakers to give the students a chance to broaden their horizons and take in new knowledge from those with the skill and the experience.

"Rho Chi seeks to increase the awareness of the ethical and social responsibilities of the profession of pharmacy."

The annual blood drive was held in late October. They held the state university record for the most pints of blood donated with 929 units.

For Homecoming, Senate sponsored several activities, including, a parade through downtown Weatherford, an assembly crowning the Queen, and a Homecoming dance after the game. The theme was "Rocketing through the 80's."

The Achievers Strive For Goal

A goal of 219 members had been set for the Southwestern Pharmaceutical Association, which was not entirely impossible for their last count was 184 members.

Memberships were not the Southwestern Pharmaceutical Association's only goal. The union of pharmacy students, broadening education experience by providing ways to serve a community, interacting with other professionals, and providing social activities were some of the other goals and desires of SWPhA members. A big job, but someone had to do it, and why not this particualr organization? They took the challenge with fire in their eyes.

Activities and meetings helped them in this task. Monthly meetings, a hamburger cookout, a float in the Homecoming Parade, a fair booth in Oklahoma City, and a Christmas party set the mood for participation and attendance by the students.

Southwestern Pharmaceutical Association was an organization that involved everyone truly interested in pharmacy. Open to pre-pharmacy and all pharmacy students, SWPhA provided an opportunity to become more involved and get better acquainted.

Promoting A Good Feeling

Southwestern Oklahoma State University Nurses' Student Association's purpose was to promote health and wellness through community and school-related activities. A good purpose that was finely executed.

SOSUNSA was involved in many community, as well as school, functions such as manning a First-Aid Booth at the Weatherford Arts Festival, working at the Hypertension Screening Booth at the State Fair of Oklahoma, participating in the Homecoming parade, being involved in various fund-raising service projects, attending meetings with special guest speakers, monthly meetings, and even a Halloween party.

SOSUNSA provided a great opportunity for all students interested in meeting new friends as well as getting involved in nursing as a professional career choice.

Last spring, SOSUNSA won honors for raising the most money in a rock-a-thon, with proceeds going to the Ronald McDonald House for seriously ill children, sponsored by Kappa Epsilon.

Spirit Of The '80's

The Upward Bound Program was proud to be back on campus for another three-year funding period. Upward Bound was a federally funded program directed by Lou Ann Largent and designed to provide helpful experiences to area youth who met the economic criteria. New Horizons Community Mental Health Center, the grantee of the program, and our campus was the host institution.

In the past, the program emphasis was primarily upon social and cultural enrichment, but the new focus had been strongly shifted to providing outstanding academic training. This training was tailored to the individual students' needs and performance levels. The goal was for each Upward Bound student to enter the next academic year significantly stronger in the areas covered by the summer training. Summer training consisted of daily classes in math and science, reading and social studies, grammar and writing, verbal communication skills, computerized word processing, and study skills.

The Upward Bound program's professional counselors provided extensive individual testing in both the areas of academic achievement and vocational guidance. In addition, numerous reading assignments and guest speakers were provided in the area of vocational guidance. Outstanding area teachers provided the instruction in each area of study, and each student attended the full academic program each day.

The students recruited for the Upward Bound program had been screened to assure that a healthy balance of students with varying skill levels were given the opportunity for this additional training. In the current group, approximately one-fourth of the Upward Bound youth were superior students, one-half average, and one-fourth remedial in some of the various areas covered.

Naturally, recreational activities and culturally enriching trips were included; but as one can see, the new Upward Bound program was in tune with the spirit of the 80's and was designed to give fifty area young people an opportunity to gear up for the challenges of international competition in a "high tech" future.

Brothers In Leadership-Friendship

Alpha Phi Omega assembled students in a National Service Fraternity in the fellowship of the principles of the Boy Scouts of America, and developed leadership. They promoted friendship, provided service to humanity, and advanced freedom of national, educational, and intellectual heritage.

Alpha Phi celebrated their tenth year on campus with several members attending a National Convention at Washington D.C. in late December. There Leadership Development workshops and Service/Fellowships ideas were discussed.

Dorms, Greeks, And Off Campus Housing All Provide Students The Necessities For L•I•V•I•N•G

Many times, moving away from home for the first time, or even the fourth time, can be a very trying experience; however, students who entered this campus soon found many new "homes away from home" to take the place of mom and dad. Students found new friends and surroundings to be exciting as they moved loads and loads of clothing, necessities, and just plain junk into residence halls, Greek houses, apartments, and trailer houses.

Members of the social sororities and fraternities welcomed freshmen and other new residents with rush parties, dances and many other social events.

Dorms were bustling with excitement as roommates learned to know each other's likes and dislikes. Stewart, Neff, and Parker Hall residents suffered through over 100 degree heat waves, while Jefferson, Oklahoma, and Roger's residents worried about having to walk the dreaded stairs because the elevator was out again. However, if someone was to ask any dorm student which hall was the best, his reply would have been his own dorm without delay.

Intramural sports such as volleyball, flag football, and table tennis helped students living in and out of the dorms create memorable times that most will never forget. Parker and Oklahoma Halls joined together to host a Golden Nugget night. During the event, students were able to gamble with play tokens. Money made from the event went to a predetermined charity.

Rogers and Jefferson Hall residents often gathered in their courtyard for dancing or just playing around to help pass the time between studies.

Freedom of off campus living brought with it pool parties during the warmer months and, for some, sitting beside a warm fireplace during the winter months.

Many students were commuters, driving daily from surrounding towns and communities. Some students drove from as far as Altus every day to attend class. For these students, getting up an extra hour early just to make it to class on time was a daily routine.

On or off campus, students everywhere enjoyed the special effects of the university life.

The Sig Taus or "Taus" as they called themselves, were an active vibrant men's social fraternity. Although their membership was small, they proved to be an active young group of men.

The Taus kept busy by having several functions with the women's sororities and by holding three annual parties, such as Halloween, Christmas, White Rose Banquet, and the April Toga Bash.

The Taus were also looking forward to gaining a house by the beginning of the fall '85 semester and held many fundraising events to achieve this goal. Sig Taus also started a first on campus by sponsoring the first non-alcoholic rush for the purpose of attaining pledges.

Through this type of rush they signed 17 pledges who were interested in the Greek life and Sig Tau Gamma Fraternity.

The Sig Taus were busy planning their National Conclave at Western Hills State Lodge in Oklahoma. The Sig Taus were in charge of entertainment and recreation for the other 125 chapters throughout the United States.

Linda Sawatzky was the Sig Tau's choice for the White Rose Queen and was also a Homecoming Queen Candidate.

Alpha Gamma Delta

The Alpha Gams kept busy during the year by sponsoring the annual Alpha Gamma Delta Men of Southwestern Calendar. The girls combined business with pleasure as they constructed the calendar, using pictures of the twelve best-looking men on campus. Proceeds went to the Alpha Gamma Delta national philanthrophy of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation.

The Alpha Gams also enjoyed many social activities. Among them were sneaks, rush parties, and hanging around the house. Their main events included the annual Christmas Dance and the Spring Formal. The Alpha Gams raised money throughout the year to sponsor these events.

Members were also kept busy by competing in Intramural Powderpuff Football and Intramural Basketball.

For the Homecoming Parade, members of Alpha Gamma Delta combined talents with the men of Sigma Tau Gamma to build a float. Elaborating on the theme of "Rocketing Through the Eighties", they created a replica of the globe, with a space shuttle revolving around it.

Phi Delta Theta

Hal Walton and Travis Morgan are eagerly awaiting the Great Pumpkin on the roof of the Phi Delta Theta House.

Being a power house of Greek sports was one thing for which the Phi Delts were known. The Phi Delts participated in all the sports available to them: intramural football and basketball, and the Superstar Competition. They always seemed to bring home a trophy or two. Phi Delts were also involved in their community improvement projects. They assisted in a city-wide clean-up campaign of Weatherford and raised money for the Lou Gehrig's Disease Foundation.

When the Phi Delts weren't involved with the community, you could find them taking time out in some type of social activity. Among their traditional functions were: Halloween Masquerade, Hawaiian Party, and their annual Altus Alumni Blow Out at Lake Altus. They also had functions with the other women's fraternities during the year.

They had a very successful rush. They signed ten new pledges interested in the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity.

The Hawaiian Rush Party was a great success. The Phi Delt's brought in truck loads of sand into their backyard to make it appear like a beach. The effect increased the overall atmosphere of the party, and made it a record turn out for any rush party.

The year came to a close with the Senior Formal Banquet. The members honored their seniors and honored the outstanding Phi Delta Theta Senior.

Sigma Kappa

The Sigma Kappas made it through another successful year full of fun activities, and community enrichment projects. They acquired ten pledges in the fall, increasing their membership to twenty-three.

The Sig Kaps social life was quite active. They held swaps with the other men's Greek fraternities, had the annual Harvest Moon Masquerade Party, and held their Violet Ball Awards in the Spring.

The members took time out from their social and school schedules to raise money for organizations such as: Gerontology, the study of the old; the American Farm School, an agriculture school for people in Greece; and the Main Sea Coast Mission.

With all this activity, one would think there was no time for class work. Wrong. Sigma Kappa maintained a high scholastic average among the women's fraternities.

The Sig Kaps were on the prowl looking for a new house in which to fit their sisterhood. They lost their house at the beginning of the year. Between looking for a new house and keeping up with their busy social calendar, the Sig Kaps managed to squeeze in a few moments to have weekly meetings and to instruct their pledges in the ways of Sigma Kapps.

work and play, the Sigma Kappa Sorority became an active part of the Southwestern State Campus. As one of the Sigma Kappa members bumber stickers read, "Sigma Kappa Sorority, Top Priority" was how the women felt about the Sorority and the activities in which they were involved.

Pi Kappa Alpha members became carpenters, painters, and wood finishers while touching up their newly acquired house — the result of successful fund raising events and support from generous alumni.

The Pikes still took time out from the busy house repairs to have a few social functions. These included the Homecoming party, Christmas party, and the Dream Girl Ball, the main event, honoring their Pi Kappa Alpha Dream Girl. These events were added to the many rush parties, swaps with the women's fraternities, and the social activities of Greek Week.

The Pikes loved the thrill of competition and contributed to this by being active in Intramural Basketball, Flag Football, and the IFC Superstars Competition. This competition kept the Pikes constantly on the move to keep ahead of the game.

Through all those activities, the Pikes managed to keep up their college classes, and maintained the highest grade point average of the men's social Greek fraternities on campus.

Other activities for the Pikes included a canned food drive for families who couldn't afford Thanksgiving dinners, and several fund raisers to help finance their Dream Girl Ball.

Gamma Phi Beta

Member Rachel Shoemaker tries on a new make-up remover applied by Kristie Bailey.

Gamma Phi Beta was a women's Social Fraternity that offered sisterhood and lasting friendships. They achieved this by having functions and gatherings that offered their members a chance to grow socially.

The Gamma Phi's had an active social calendar which included: various functions with the men's fraternities; their annual Boxer Rebellion; and their big blowout, The Pink Carnation Ball. All the women participated in these events in coordination with their college activities and classes.

The Gamma Phi's were also very active in projects to better the community and its surroundings. The Chapter raised money for a camp for under privledged children, and a special donation drive was done for Kimberly Fuller, a child needing heart and lung transplants to live. The chapter also answered the call for blood at the Student Senate blood drive.

Community Service projects included participation in an area wide clean-up of the Weatherford community, getting donations for the Weatherford Community Fund Drive, and various projects during Greek Week.

The Gamma Phi's looked forward to another successful year and hoped to increase their membership to double what they had in 1984-85.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Tau Kappa Epsilon, the oldest Greek chapter on campus, had a busy itinerary. The TKE's kept busy by rushing for new members at the beginning of each semester and topping it off with the tradtional parties which included: the Homecoming Party, the Ding Dong Party, the Halloween Party, and their Christmas Ball.

Partying was not the only thing the TKE's did. They raised money for organizations such as St. Judes Children's Home in Nashville, Tennessee, and they also sponsored the women's Intramural football League and the Boy Scouts Box Car Derby.

The TKE's also participated in all the men's intramural sports. Their teams did well in both basketball and football, which made the TKE's known in the intramural field of competition.

House improvement was at the top of the TKE's list. They improved the house by painting the exterior and relandscaped the front by planting different shrubs. The TKE Bell was repainted and the letters were strengthened for another year of vandalism.

LOOKING FORWARD AT THE REFLECTION

We sought knowledge that would inspire, looked upon college as a great adventure,
fought temptation to study to become what we desire.
It was difficult to leave the security of home and know that it would not be the same after the departure.
We laughed and cried a little — finally making the adjustment.
The friends we made, the people we met broadened the world that seemed so small.

JEFFERSON HALL

Jefferson Hall sits with Rogers Hall majestically on the outskirts of Southwestern's campus. There is much to be said for Jefferson Hall: zany, comical, unusual, and after all, the insanity aside, being studious superceded anything else.

The guys enjoyed easing off a little anxiety after class with some inter-floor touch football and volleyball. Also, a friendly game of volleyball with Roger's girls could be found in the courtyard nearly every nice evening. Cookouts and dances were scheduled throughout the year to relieve some of the pressure.

In recent year's, the guys of Jefferson Hall had their own end of the year beach party on the Canadian River. The location of the event was called "Emmerson Beach".

NEFF HALL

Neff Hall shared a rich and old tradition of being the second oldest dorm on campus, a duplicate of Stewart Hall minus the third floor. Neff Hall men were very casual and relaxed in their life style. Residents of Neff enjoyed the just completed major renovation of the hall.

One of the attractions of the old prestigious dorm was the wide spacious rooms where the furniture could be moved around to accomodate individual tastes.

Lounging in the television room and conversing with fellow students was one of the pasttimes enjoyed by all.

OKLAHOMA HALL

Enthusiasm was Oklahoma Hall as it could have been felt by just walking into the door. Electricity was everywhere with new ideas from the freshman, and upperclasswomen who have seen things that needed to be changed or were just tired of the old ways of doing things.

New projects the girls of Oklahoma Hall accomplished or attempted under the guidance of Tom and Terry Daily, dorm parents, included building a float in the Homecoming parade, and planting flowers around the outside of the dorm to show their spirit to the university and the community.

For their self enjoyment, the girls acquired a video-cassette recorder to go along with the wide screen television procured the proceeding year. Dances and volleyball tournaments in the extracurricular schedule were among the few things the residents did to relieve some of the pressure of school.

The girls were charitably minded. With the help of Parker Hall they co-sponsored the "Golden Nugget", which was a gambling night using play tokens as money. Proceeds for the event went to a charity.

PARKER HALL

Parker Hall consisted of two, three-story wings connected by an area containing an office, a snack area, and two television lounges. A recreation area providing ping pong tables was located below the office and television area. One floor had been designated as a quiet area day and night for those students requiring additional silence for their studies.

Activities during the year were a cookout for all the residents to become acquainted with old friends and make new ones. For Chrismtas, lights made the dorm look more like home. The dorm co-sponsored the "Golden Nugget," casino night with Oklahoma Hall. Play tokens were used for a simulated gambling night. Proceeds went to a charity.

The dances were a very popular event during the year with special themes at Halloween and Christmas. Other informal dances were held throughout the year, giving the girls a chance to socialize and take an evening off from studying.

Residents also went to anything sporty, such as Intramural Volleyball and Flag Football, sponsored by the Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity.

The girls had open house during Homecoming, which prompted the decoration of all seven floors.

STEWART HALL

Residents of Stewart Hall were made welcome with a first-of-the-year ice cream social, among other year-opening festivities.

Secret Pals were a part of the fun during the year for several residents. Those who participated, enjoyed pleasant surprises from unknown fellow participants for two weeks. At the end of that time, a party was held to let the secret pals get acquainted.

Stewart Hall was the oldest dorm on campus. This was no problem for those residents who kept coming back to stay there each year. In spite of the hot summers without air conditioning, this was their beloved home away from home.

OFF CAMPUS

Everyone who has ever lived in a university dormitory has wondered what it is like to live off campus in an apartment, a trailor house, or almost anything that was habitable. Living in a dwelling off campus can give one a sense of freedom and accountability to oneself. Off-campus living looked glamorous to students who lived two to a room and with 36 or more on a floor in a dormitory for any length of time.

For those that did get up the nerve and could financially afford to pack their bags and move out of their dormitory, telling parents was big in the world of new adventures. Mother did not like it because nutritional habits would break down, and father was more concerned about the high cost of apartments. With the rent and the utility bills being so much, and having to eat, most students found out very fast that having a roommate was an essential.

Some students found it easier to stay at home and drive to school. Commuting from Elk City, El Reno, and Cordell, 100 miles or farther, was not uncommon.

Todd Boyd and Robert Tippley go all out with a cookout.

Sonny Bates is preparing to indulge in a self constructed sandwich.

Queen, Sweethearts, Beaus, and Scholarship Winners Are All A Part Of H•O•N•O•R•S

Being crowned Miss Southwestern or Homecoming Queen was in the minds of many young women on campus during the school; however, those two titles are only two among many honors that were included in lives of the university's special students.

Beta Beta Beta received the Student Senate's President's Trophy for being the most active organization on campus. Other groups on campus such as Phi Beta Lambda received honors at the state level.

Students who excelled all-around were awarded with the Who's Who award for outstanding achievement. Many were recognized on the Dean's and President's honor roll for academic excellence.

Sweethearts and beaus were chosen by various organizations on campus. These popular people were often voted on by the organization, then sponsored in an event such as the Homecoming Queen contest or the Miss Southwestern contest.

Guys on campus were sometimes honored by having their picture published in one of the sorority's annual calendars of SWOSU's best looking or best all-around males.

Whether the students were recognized with flowers, trophies, crowns, or just a simple "Congratulations, you did a good job," the university considered it an honor to have them on campus.

Rebecca Dorrough, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Dorrough Jr., Woodward junior majoring in marketing, was the first runner-up. She later became Miss Southwestern, as Guinn did not return to the university in the fall, relinquishing her title to the next in line.

Sandra Hamilton was presented with the second-runner up plaque and Aletha White was honored as the third runner up in the pageant.

Diana Parker, who performed a piano solo for her talent, received the Non-finalist Talent Award for the contest.

Other contestants in the pageant included: Lisa Megli, Alana Driscoll, Kari Schmoker, Cindy Ralph, and Cynthia Granchie.

Others honored at the banquet included Senate members and citizens from the community who supported Senate activities. Students Get Out Of Their Rooms And Into S•P•O•R•T•S

Sedrick Love, baton in hand, prepares to make his start in the relay.

A coach patting a game hero with helmets and bodies crashing in the foreground, or a basketball player breaking for the goal on a fast break — these were the scenes during some of the many sports activities held during the school year. Another scene might have been runners stretching during a track meet or a baseball game, or guys warming up in the gym for an evening intramural game. All of these were the special touch of sports.

Enthusiastic crowds came to fill Rankin Williams Fieldhouse to watch the nationally ranked women's basketball team. The women gave the supporters something to cheer about as they fought their way toward the national championships. The crowd functioned as the sixth member of the team, either cheering on the teams, or much to the dismay of the administration, harassing referees with noisemaking and yells.

The intramural program continued with coaches as well as students at the helm. Students canvassed the campus asking other students what sport they would like to include in the intramural program. Volleyball, basketball, football, along with men's wrestling, kept the students active in co-ed sports.

The cheerleaders played an active role in encouraging school spirit at the football and basketball games. Yelling, tumbling, and clapping were all part of the girls' jobs while leading the crowds in chants and cheers.

Although the football season started slowly, the team soon gained strength during the competitive season. The feeling of competition was in the air and the men on the team sensed the feeling and reacted to it victoriously.

No matter the sport, or the season record, the students played the games because they wanted to. Students got out of their rooms and into shape. They played all the sports with a special touch.

DETERMINED TO BE STRONG

A Young Team With Determination Builds Into A Strong Opponent

The men's basketball team surprised many by being tough, and giving the opponents competition. The Dawg's record didn't do them justice. Having a winning ratio of near 50%, many of their losses were within 10 points.

The team was smaller than it had been in the past, but they still had the drive to win. It was team effort that either won or lost the ballgames.

The Bulldogs were young, many old stars had gone, and new recruits were learning to work together. It took concentration and hard work to become a team. The men gave their best and became a fierce opponent for their rivals.

STRIVING FOR EXCELLENCE

Hard Work, Talent, And Consistency Keeps The Lady Bulldogs On Top

Ranked number one in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics poll from the start of the season, the Lady Bulldogs worked hard to stay on top. It seemed as though the ladies were unbeatable as they continuously left their opponents defeated on their way to the NAIA National Championships in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Head Coach John Loftin expected a good, solid offensive team, and the girls showed him they could win. The team had much talent and maturity. Loftin said the team, which was mostly juniors and seniors, was, "the most mature team I have ever coached." The team played good, strong basketball, always with the hope of a chance at the NAIA National title.

Defeating Saginaw Valley In The NAIA National Finals, The Lady Blues Proved To Be

The Best

Heroes were plentiful Saturday, March 16 in the Five seasons Center in Cedar Rapids, Iowa as the Lady Bulldogs held off Saginaw Valley, MI 55-54 to claim their third National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Championship in four years. The two undefeated teams met in the finals of the tournament to fight for the championship title.

Fittingly enough, Kelli Litsch, Fay senior, provided the game winner for the Lady Bulldogs with a 16 footer off the baseline with 18 seconds to play. However, Litsch was backed with super offense and defense which proved to be the key in winning the national quest.

Southwestern ended the season 34-0 while Saginaw finished 31-1. According to Coach John Loftin, "This was the best one. The teams have improved so much in this tournament, I feel in a game like this that Saginaw can consider themselves champions." And what a game it was. The final game of the NAIA National Championships was everything a championship game should be. The two teams battled neck and neck down to the wire.

Following Litsch's shot at 18 seconds, Saginaw called a time out; however, the clock did not stop until 12 seconds remained. The last Saginaw posession met the Lady Bulldog defense full force and fought for the last shot by Saginaw's Beverly Sanders. The shot launched over the head of Shelly Brown, Holdenville junior, but fell short of the two points. Brown rebounded as the buzzer sounded and the Ladies gained another victory. "I was hoping it wouldn't go in," Brown said following the game, This was the best game I played all season." Brown had a game high of 21 points and pulled down eight rebounds in the battle.

As the last few seconds wound down on the time clock, the Bulldog bench held hands and prayed for their teammates on the court. "It was really terrific," said Lisa Segard, Springdale, AR junior," Instead of yelling at them we all prayed for them and it worked!" Jan "Cheese" Cheadle, Carnegie senior covered her head with a towel as the last seconds ticked away. She, along with Litsch, were the only two team members who had participated in all four national championship trips. "It's hard to believe I've accomplished something four times that a lot of girls never accomplish, which is going to the national tournament."

National Champs

The wonderful feeling about the tournament was shared by her teammate Carri Hayes, Latta senior. "It's a dream come true," said Hayes after the championship trophy was awarded to the senior of the team, "It's just a feeling you can't explain."

In regular season play, the Ladies had a 26-0 record scoring 1807 points to their opponents 1343. The closest scoring to the Lady Bulldogs during season play occured in a match against Northwestern, 62-58.

On their way to the national tournament, the Lady Blues swept through the NAIA District Nine Tournament by defeating Northwestern, 73-52. They then defeated St. Mary of the Plains, KS 74-53 to boost themselves to the NAIA Bi-District Title.

The opening game of the NAIA National Tournament pitted the Lady Blues against Southern Maine University. In the game Southwestern rolled over their opponent, 68-49. After the opening round, the Bulldogs squeezed past the University of Missouri at Kansas City, 65-60 in the quarter-finals and defeated Wayland Baptist, TX, 63-49 in the semi-finals.

Following the championship game and in front of approximately 100 Lady Bulldog fans who had traveled on busses, van and cars to watch the girls play, Litsch and Brown were named to the NAIA National Championship All Tournament Team. For the third time, Litsch was presented with the tournament's Most Valuable Player Award for her performance in the games. Loftin was given his third Coach of the Year Award as the Lady Bulldogs brought the National title back to Weatherford.

Scoring her 2698th point of her career at Southwestern, Litsch chalked up records which would not soon be broken. She also brought down 1234 rebounds for her career record. As Coach Loftin stated, "Litsch hit the shot for us in the end. That's a fitting way for her to end her career."

Seniors on the Lady Bulldog team included Litch, Cheadle, Hayes, and Ellissa Fountain, Dallas, TX. Juniors for the team were Brown; Segard; Delisa Stroud, Snyder; and Marilu Dunard, Troy, MO. Donna Beede, McAlester, was the only sophomore for the Lady Blues, followed by freshmen members Dane Fergason, Custer City; Angie McBrayer, Weatherford; and Pendra Hamar, Hydro.

SPIRIT LEADERS

Cheerleaders Work Hard To Raise The Spirit Intensity Level Of Players And Fans

Leading the football team onto the field, bringing the fans to their feet at basketball games, tossing small footballs into the stadium, the cheerleaders practiced for hours to enhance the spirit in the players and fans alike. They decorated the locker rooms and gave the teams small parties prior to some of the games to let the players know they were behind them.

The cheerleaders participated in several parades including the Tri-State Fair Parade in Amarillo, TX, and the Homecoming Parade in Weatherford.

Popcorn and candy in tin cans with the mascot, Brandy, printed on them were sold to raise funds for use in generating spirit.

Returning cheerleaders Melody King, Paula Danley, and Marta Payne were joined by Kayla New, Shauna Boothby, Melinda Green, Stephanie Patton, and new sponsor, associate Dean of Women Kay Williams. Melody King served as head cheerleader.

BATTLING THE BEST

The Football Team Competes Against Some Of The Best In The Nation

The football team powered through a tough schedule including four nationally ranked teams. After losing their first three games: 14-10 to Eastern New Mexico State University (ranked second in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics at the time), 27-7 to Missouri Southern University, and 44-6 in the home opener to Sam Houston State University, they upset 19th ranked Cameron State University, 19-12. The team continued with defeats over the University of Nueva Leon (exhibition), 27-0 and Southeastern Oklahoma State University, 22-14.

The team succumbed to Northeastern Oklahoma State University, 26-8; but rebounded to defeat Langston University, 31-20. The final two opponents, Northwestern Oklahoma State University (Homecoming) and East Central Oklahoma State University were both nationally ranked in the top 20. The team lost to NWOSU 12-0, and came within three points of upsetting ECOSU, who won 41-38. They finished with a record of 4-6.

The fall semester was filled with many different sports. Warlords III defeated Weekend Warriors to gain the championship of men's flag football. Susan Lyda was first individual, and David Rose, Todd Schick, Ben Sprague, and Danny Chapman won as first place team in a swim-a-thon which raised $80.00 for the Weatherford Community Fund.

Lady Bulldogs fought their way to the top in women's volleyball and twenty-one participated in seven classes in the bench press competition. Dawn Engleman and Robin Palesano came in first in women's and men's divisions of the fun run and for the fourth year in a row, the Bandits defeated Last Chance in the championship co-ed softball game.

Intramural teams made up of groups of friends, dorms, organizations, or greeks, were sponsored by faculty members. Dr. Laura Switzer sponsored women's intramurals in the spring, while fall women's intramurals were sponsored by Mrs. Ernestine Wright. Mike Whaley sponsored men's intramurals throughout the year.

HIGH IN THE SADDLE

A Combination Of Experience And Skill Gives The Rodeo Team A Big Lead.

The rodeo team overpowered the Central Plains Region (Kansas, Oklahoma, and part of Missouri), of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association after just three rodeos. The men's team led with 610 points over Labette Community College who scored 384.5, and Panhandle State University with 372 points. The women totaled 852.5 points with Panhandle State and Labette scoring 434.5 and 241.5 points respectively.

The team consisted of 71 members and three coaches: Head Coach Don Mitchell, and Assistant Coaches George Howard and Bill Yarbrough. Most of the members attended and/or competed in each rodeo with the top six cowboys scores totaling to make the men's team score, and the top three cowgirls points making the women's score. Because some schools competed in more rodeos than others, the top six scores of the team were added to determine the team standings. The top team then went to the NIRA Finals Rodeo in Boseman, Montana.

Bryan Wright, who obtained a total of 402 points in the first three rodeos, led the Men's all-around competition over second place, Phil Gooch of Pratt Community College, who had 123 points.

The team was experienced, strong, talented, and consistent in their successful efforts to lead throughout the season.

PLAYING FOR FUN

A Special Quality Of The Team Is Their Enjoyment Of The Game

Highlighting the year for the women's tennis team was the quarter-final victory in the Flight #3 District Nine Tennis Doubles Championships of Melani Mouse and Leah Anne Stuteville. After taking a 7-6, 6-3 edge over the team of Delso and Smith of Northeastern Oklahoma State University, the pair was nudged in the tourney semi-finals by the East Central State University duo of Wheeler and Moore — the eventual district champions in the event.

Other team members who participated in the District Nine Tennis tournament included Brenda White, Dawn Engleman, Gwen Ayers, and Lynne Mason.

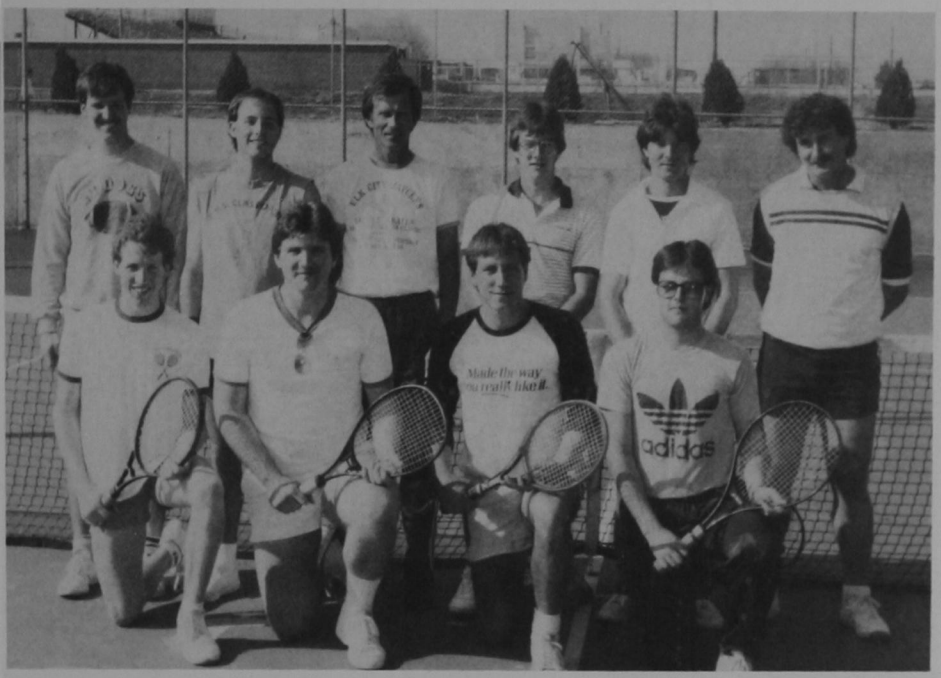
A TOUGH RACKET

The Tennis Team Worked Hard Against Some Strong Competition



The men's tennis team, despite having to play against the toughest teams in the Oklahoma Intercollegiate Conference, finished the season with an even 2-2 record in dual matches. The team, coached by Ed Buffum, came in fifth in District Nine of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. The team hosted the OIC tournament in which they finished in third place.

Tennis, as a team sport, was offered only in the spring. It took a great deal of hard work on the part of individual players to meet the standards of the competition — most of whom had the advantage of year-round practice. The men who strived for victory were there because they enjoyed the game and had the desire to play.

SOARING WITH SPIRIT

The Softball Team Joins Together To Gain Spirit And Strength

Women's competitive softball has been a part of the athletic program for many years. Each year the central core of the team is a new selection of students; therefore, it was difficult to grow in strength. The competitive season was in the spring and very short. The ladies conditioned and developed teamwork quickly to display a high quality of skill.

This is one area of competition to attract women students and challenge them to excellence while providing them an opportunity to compete at the college level.

RIGHT: Terri Hulsey connects with the ball for an infield hit.

Trainers . . .

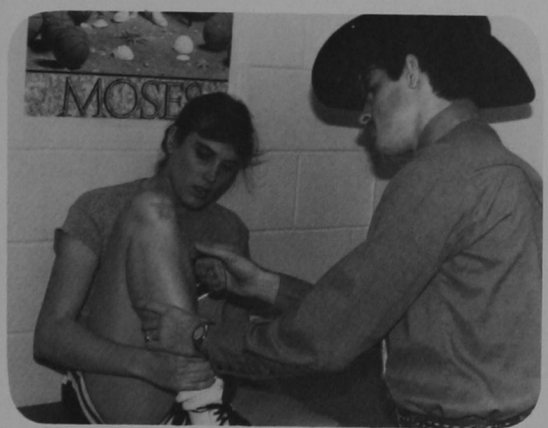
Keeping The Team Healthy

Twisted knees, pulled muscles, broken bones, bruises, torn ligaments, cuts and scratches all are common elements of athletics. Keeping the physical condition of an athlete at its best is the duty assigned to the trainers.

The trainer cares for the wounds and administers first-aid when the injury takes place. Depending upon the seriousness of the injury, the trainer may continue to care for it, or the athlete may see a doctor. Therapy is included in the trainer's duties, working with the injured player to allow for proper healing.

Not only do trainers treat injuries, but also use preventive tactics. Prior to practices and games, the trainer tapes ankles, wraps knees, and administers the use of any other wrap, tape, or brace that may aid in preventing injuries. The trainer will also examine the old injuries to check for proper healing, and apply the necessary preventive materials.

Serving as trainers for football were: Head Trainer Danny Ringer and Jay Elliot. Jason Maxwell worked for the Lady Bulldogs, and Randy Romines helped keep the Men's Basketball team healthy.



TOP: Jason Maxwell tapes the ankle of Lisa Segard prior to practice.
CENTER: Danny Ringer takes a look at Loonie May's ankle injury.

Freshmen To Seniors Make Up

As summer came to a close, many students returned to the campus for another year of college life. People from many different walks of life found their way back to the classrooms and became involved in other activities the university had to offer.

New friends were made and old acquaintances renewed. Southwesterners joined others in doing what they did best — singing, acting, playing a sport, studying, partying, or just acting crazy. No matter what the activity, students joined together to form the special people of Southwestern.

Kynda New takes off her graduate's cap and bids farewell to college days.

Looking Back To Happy As Well As Trying Times- Students Recall Many Fond And Lasting

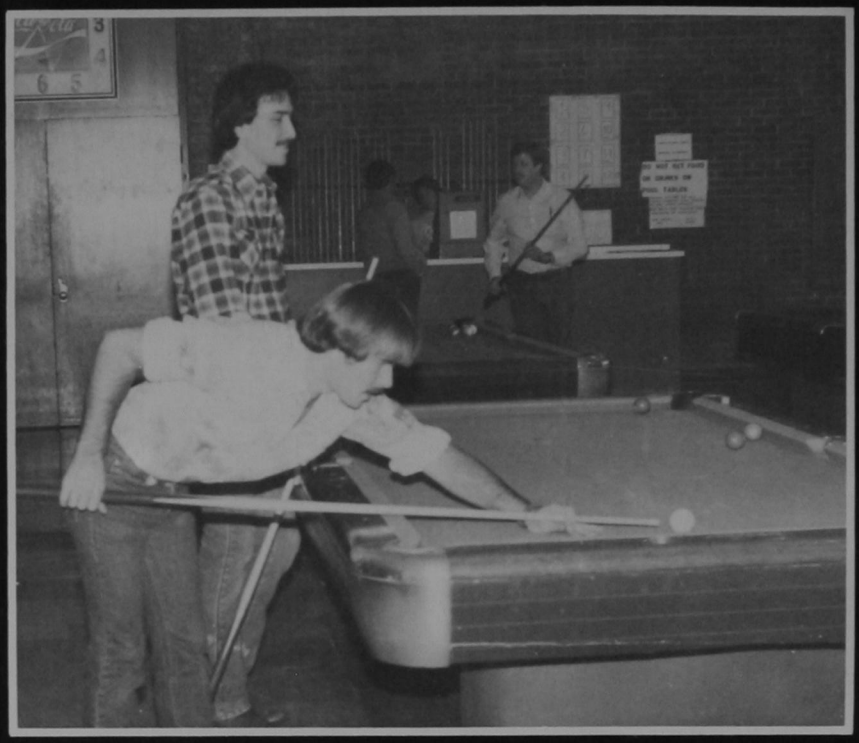
M•E•M•O•R•I•E•S

It was a special year that will be remembered by all who took an active part at Southwestern.

Saying goodbye to friends, hugging roommates and sorority sisters and fraternity brothers, crying as those who have been like a family for the last nine months leave — these are special scenes that occur every May in Weatherford.

As many seniors cross the stage at Milam stadium to get their diplomas, thoughts of their four years of university life flash before their eyes, and they smile — remembering dearly, the special moments, friends, activities, and faculty of Southwestern Oklahoma State University.

Special Moments



Right: Bart Harrison and Mike Jackson enjoy a game of pool in the Student Union to relax from the day's work. Below: Joe Conklin plans to defense a shot by an opposing foosball player. Below right: Richard Kline enjoys the exercise he is getting by running in the ROTC Fun Run.

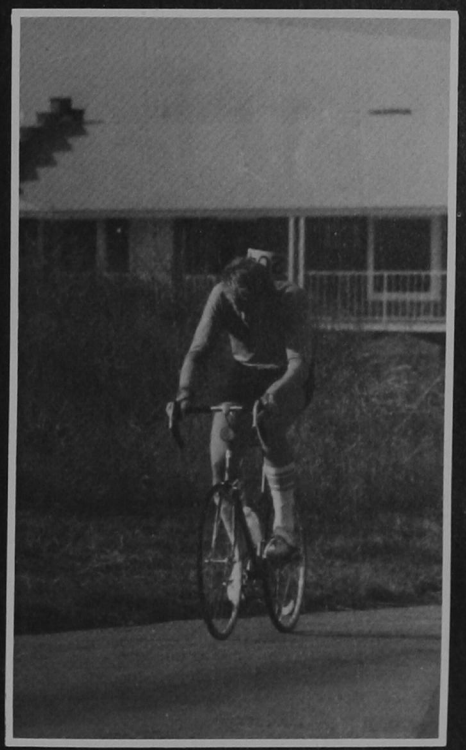
Top: "If it's gonna be cold, it might as well snow," seems to be the feelings of students who love the whiteness winter sometimes brings. Left: Stephanie Patten anxiously awaits the beginning of a cheer at a football game. Below: A lone bicycle rider, Jeff Nicklas, pushes himself to gain a good position in the Triathalon.



Just Special

Left: The new Fine Arts Center was a special addition to the campus during the school year. The Center will be used for university and community events. Below: Snow was a speciality not often seen around Weatherford but, when present, was usually enjoyed by all.

This book began as a special dream many months ago as visions of "the best yearbook Southwestern has ever had" danced in my head. Of course, without the help of many special people, the book would never have come to being.

These people include the BULLDOG staff, who gave up many social events, meals, and even sleeping for deadlines. To all my friends who volunteered time and effort to write copy, draw layouts, or just give me moral support. Thank you.

Shalia Wakeman, my personal errand-girl, comedian, roommate, and friend — you're great! Without your help, I would have never made it through the crisis times.

A heartfelt thanks goes to my mother, Mable Duerksen, who supported me and told me she knew I'd do a great job. Thanks mom — I finally finished! Another person who helped me through the dreaded deadlines and highpoints of the 1985 BULLDOG was Ken Carlisle. Thanks Ken for all the times you told me to work on the yearbook instead of spending time with you. Your encouragement was much needed and appreciated.

Behind this BULLDOG Special was a special yearbook advisor, Richard Wilson. Thank you Mr. Wilson for having faith in me and letting me try new ideas with the book. I know sometimes you wondered if we could pull it off, but we did!

Most of all, thanks to Southwestern Students for letting me and the staff try to capture the "specialness" of Southwestern. Think of us as you look at this book, we were thinking of you through every page.
