COLLEGE KEEPS A-BUILDING

Bids have been opened and construction is expected to start soon on a large addition to the Chemistry - Pharmacy - Physics Building on campus.

With a low base bid of $1,047,600, the J. J. Bollinger Construction Co. of Oklahoma City is apparently in line to receive the contract.

Bollinger's proposal, plus architects' fees, will run the building's base cost to $1,108,336.

Completion of the 42,000-square-foot structure is scheduled within one year after awarding of the contract.

Joining the present Chemistry-Pharmacy-Physics Building on the east side and extending south, the three-story addition will be 67-1/2 feet wide and 209 feet long. It will conform generally in design and materials with the existing 50,000-square-foot building.

The building is to be air-conditioned and contain 21 offices, five classrooms, 19 laboratories, nine preparation rooms and seven animal areas, in addition to 29 rooms for storage, restrooms and mechanical rooms.

Several other building projects are in progress, and use of the college swimming pool began in April.

Two dormitory towers --- Will Rogers and Thomas Jefferson Halls --- and Southwestern's second cafeteria are in the final stages of construction, as is the new Arts and Science Building.

The big new Library was completed last November, and renovation of the old library building has begun. The latter will become home for the art department, and also will provide additional classroom and office space.

Grads Hear Gen. Turner

A Southwestern alumnus who now is a high-ranking officer in the United States Army was principal speaker at the 64th annual spring convocation exercises here May 24.

Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, provost marshal general of the Army, told the 624 candidates for degrees --- largest number in Southwestern's history --- that patriotism is not old-fashioned, and warned that civil disobedience could destroy America.

Inclement weather forced the graduation ceremonies indoors, and the huge crowd filled the gymnasium to overflowing.

Gen. Turner was awarded his bachelor of science degree from Southwestern in 1939. A native of Altus, he entered the Army two years later to begin a long and distinguished career.

He served during World War II in Europe, and following the conflict he held a number of positions before being appointed provost marshal general on July 1, 1964.

The general received the 1967 Enforcement Award from the Association of Federal Investigators for "outstanding contributions and accomplishments as an international author, lecturer and leader in the investigative and law enforcement field."

He was the second recipient of the award, the first being J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Gen. and Mrs. Turner make their home in Springfield, Va., with their two children --- Richard, 19, and Frances, 16.
We'll Still Trade Subs for Addresses

Echoes' mailing list has passed the 4,350 mark, and the number is growing almost daily.

In the March issue readers were offered a free one-year subscription to The Southwestern, SWSC newspaper, for five new addresses for the mailing list. A two-year sub awaited all who submitted 10 new ones.

The response proved that advertising does pay, and the offer is being continued.

Answering the first call were Mrs. Geraldine Sauer, Weatherford, with nine addresses Echoes didn't have before; Ethel G. Wilson, Tucson, Ariz., four; Ardy Peery, Hinton, six; Marcella Royse Kovar, Duncan, two; L. W. Ripple, Bakersfield, Calif., 10; Bobby Joel Klaassen, Oklahoma City, eight; T. E. Lauderdale, Cache, three; Maj. Bob Williams, Tinker Air Force Base, five; Karl Kitt, U. S. Air Force Academy, 22; Terry R. Schneider, 12; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hoeman, Sayre, 15; Wanda Faye Williams, Hollis, five.

The Southwestern is an award-winning newspaper, published now in the college printing plant. Published twice monthly during the regular school term in the past, it will become a weekly in September. And four issues are planned this summer.

Staff members won four first-place awards in the spring Oklahoma Collegiate Press Association contests.

If you have no addresses to send, The Southwestern is still a big bargain at the subscription rate of $2 per year.

Dear Alumni and Students.

This year of 1968 has witnessed the passing of an eminent Oklahoman and a vital force for higher education in the State of Oklahoma—Dr. Oliver Hodge, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Dr. Hodge promoted the schools of the state aggressively and diligently and has furthered the cause of education in this state as significantly as any other person. He was active in support of progressive civic measures and was a man of impeccable character. He served his state with intelligence and selflessness, and by the loss of this friend and advocate we are all saddened.

Sincerely,

Al Harris

Death Claims

Ted Burris

Ted Burris (BS, '27) died in Atlanta, Ga., on Feb. 28, where he had retired in August, 1966, as an employee of the federal government.

A graduate of Mountain View High School, Mr. Burris played football at Southwestern under Coach John F. Lance while working toward his bachelor of science degree.

He received his master of science degree from Oklahoma State University.

He met his wife, Gladys McCay, while they were attending college. The couple taught in the Erick school system two years, and he later served as superintendent of schools in Cooperton and Cache.

While at Cache, Mr. Burris was president of the Southwest District Teachers Association. Before moving to Atlanta, he was state high school inspector and also was in charge of the State Agency for Surplus Property.

He was an active member of and Sunday School teacher in the Methodist Church and of the Masonic Lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Gladys, 1564 Old Lawrenceville Road, Dunwoody, Ga.; two brothers, Hobson Burris, Elk City, and Ira Burris, Amarillo, Texas; four sisters, Mrs. Belle Miller, Mountain View, Mrs. Eva Cudd, Lindsay, Mrs. Kate Holtkamp, Lubbock, Texas, and Mrs. Berta Price, Hereford, Texas.
Two hundred people from many states traveled to the college on April 20 to honor a pair of former Bulldog coaches at a Southwestern Hall of Fame installation banquet.

And it was an enjoyable occasion for the eighth and ninth Hall inductees—Joe B. Milam and Marion H. Surbeck, who coached the school’s wrestlers to greatness in the 1930’s.

Under Milam and Surbeck, the wrestling program flourished and brought national recognition to SWSC. Each coach had two national championship wrestling teams—Milam in 1933 and 1934; Surbeck in 1937 and 1939.

Milam and Surbeck, former SWSC coaches, were inducted into the Hall of Fame. Kitt, wrestling coach at the U.S. Air Force Academy, wrestled under both coaches in the 1930’s.

Presenting Dr. Al Harris (right), SWSC president, framed photographs of the college’s four national champion wrestling teams is R. W. (Dick) Moore of Altus, master of ceremonies at the installation banquet.

The Hall of Fame installation banquet brought a large number of former Southwestern wrestlers together for the first time in years. And they made the most of the situation, as they reminisced and swapped stories about post-college days.

This is a view of part of the crowd attending the banquet in the college Memorial Student Center. For many, this was the first visit to the campus since they graduated in the 1930’s.

Joe B. Milam (right) received an unexpected award at the banquet. Here, he is awarded the Helms Foundation Medallion from Jess Hoke, Wrestling News editor from Oklahoma City.

 Formal presentation of Joe Milam’s and Marion Surbeck’s pictures for hanging in the Hall of Fame is made by Ralph Teague (right) to Dick Moore. Both were wrestlers here in the 1930’s.
