State Policy Group Hosting Community Listening Session at SWOSU

To hear the concerns of everyday Oklahomans, the Oklahoma Policy Institute will be hosting a listening session this Tuesday, July 27, at Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford.

The free event that is open to the public will be held from 6:45-8 p.m. at the Day Business Enterprise Center, 1121 N. 7th St., in Weatherford. Light refreshments will be provided.

OK Policy is a non-partisan organization that seeks to advance equitable and fiscally responsible state policies to expand opportunity for all Oklahomans through its research, analysis and advocacy. OK Policy also operates a grassroots outreach and advocacy arm, known as Together Oklahoma, to mobilize residents to create change in the state.

The listening session is designed to gather direct input from Oklahomans about where state laws and policies fall short in serving the needs of Oklahomans statewide. The informal session will allow for group conversations, as well as a short survey that participants can complete.

Input from these events will shape OK Policy's work during next year's legislative session to advance policies that help establish safe communities, keep Oklahomans healthy, and ensure families and neighbors can thrive.

For more information about the listening session, contact Together Oklahoma Regional Organizer Jacobi Crowder at 580-280-9562, call the OK Policy office at 918-794-3944 or email info@okpolicy.org.
