

11-15-2008

William Eagle Feather Changes His Name

Robert Cooperman

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.swosu.edu/westview>

Recommended Citation

Cooperman, Robert (2008) "William Eagle Feather Changes His Name," Westview: Vol. 28 : Iss. 2 , Article 36.
Available at: <https://dc.swosu.edu/westview/vol28/iss2/36>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at SWOSU Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Westview by an authorized administrator of SWOSU Digital Commons. For more information, please contact phillip.fitzsimmons@swosu.edu.

William Eagle Feather Changes His Name

by Robert Cooperman

When I gave you the name
Hair Filled With Sun,
you smiled, wore it
more gracefully
than Mrs. Lavinia Burden.

Now, it's time for me
to pick a new name:
Finds the Path,
a name that counts coup
over the white blood
that battles inside me with the Ute.

Your eyes glitter mischief,
thinking this new name
a vanity
when I should be finding us a good berry patch,
of if the smoke
you spy in the distance is a white settlement
or some escaped Lakotas:
even more dangerous for us to get close to.

But I do find the paths
we follow
in our mountain dodging of desperate bands,
and of settlers and soldiers howling vengeance
for Custer.

If half the rumors
whispered of him be true, an unholy fool.

