I would like at this time to congratulate you for a job well done; please keep up the good work. I receive many fantasy related magazines but yours is far superior. I am especially impressed with your art and poetry....

I would like to ...congratulate Peter Damien Goselin on his spectacular article "Two Faces of Eve: Galadriel and Shelob as Anima Figures".... I would also like to congratulate the reviewers, George Colvin, Nancy-Lou Patterson (Happy Birthday) and J. R. Christopher; their reviews are usually the first thing that I turn to when I receive a new issue.

I am also in favour of seeing Branch reports in upcoming issues....

Cynthia Kihn

There are many things in Mythlore 21 for which I would like to compliment members of the staff.... a very good job of choosing the art pieces. I especially liked the drawing on the back cover and would like to congratulate the artist....

Another fine feature of this issue is the poem "Kyria Sophia"...a marvelously written and well embellished mythical piece.

But my favorite part was the review section, for many of these books...I would never have known about without having read the reviews, and I found the writers' opinions...very interesting.

...is there a place where friends of the Mythopoeic society can meet...? I would like to know if there are...friends of the society who have enjoyed Ursula K. LeGuin's Earthsea trilogy as much as I have. If indeed there are, I would like to meet them....

Our apologies to Mistress Kihn for losing her address. If she and anyone who wishes to correspond with her will write to the Corresponding Secretary, Lisa Cowan, they will be put in touch.

I certainly did enjoy my first copy of Mythlore.... "Kyria Sophia" is powerful in provoking an emotional response through its clear and consistent imagery, its strongly flowing, elaborate yet conversational rhythms, and its moving theme of rebirth and growth by surrender of one's self to the conquering love and communion of another. I also liked the simplicity and order of "The Lady of La Salette" which somehow gave me a feeling of separateness, even aloneness, in being loved, becoming love, or seeking love....

Dorothy L. Sayers' translation of Dante was important to me in the late '60's, but in 1974 I first read her Clouds of Witness, which impelled me to read all of her mysteries that same year. Therefore, the article "Head vs. Heart in Dorothy L. Sayers' Gaudy Night...was of great interest to me....

Anybody who writes to say that "Kyria Sophia" is flawed, or wrong from beginning to end, will get published, honest!

SADISM BALANCED

(For Lynn Christopher)

"I cannot marry", cried Lewis in his teens,
knowing the cruelty in his nature bred, knowing the dark paths lying between his whip-drawn, moody heart and moral head.

"I cannot marry"--but yet he did at last,
four decades later, with a dying wife,
bearing her cancered pain to give her rest,
carrying joy in that exchanged life.

--Joe R. Christopher

EDITORIAL, cont'd from p. 19

Do you have a letter, an anecdote, a reminiscence of Tolkien, Lewis or Williams? If so will you share it with us, perhaps with comment, in our new department "Perchance to Touch"?

If you have ever written to us and received no response, please write again to the appropriate address given on the inside cover. Your letter could have been lost by the post office, or by us in the process of changeover of personnel, or could have been snatched from the mailbox and eaten by a toddler unarranged at years of discretion. Let us know, and we will do our best to make amends. You exist.

Our thanks to Owen Barfield and Walter Hooper for permission to print the Lewis letter, which is copyright by the Estate of C. S. Lewis.

KERLAN COLLECTION, cont'd from p. 32:

Elizabeth Pope, corrected typescript and galley proof of The Perilous Gard; Allison Uttley, material from many stages of many of her books, including A Traveller in Time, Enchantment, John Barleycorn: twelve tales of fairy and magic, and The Little Knife Who Did All the Work: twelve tales of magic (the published book is one of those Pauline Baynes illustrated); and Jane A. Yolen, material from many stages of many of her books, including The Bird of Time, The Boy Who Had Wings, and The Wizard of Washington Square.
