Fall 10-15-1970

Charles Williams: A Short Reading List

Mythlore Staff

Follow this and additional works at: https://dc.swosu.edu/mythlore

Part of the Children's and Young Adult Literature Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://dc.swosu.edu/mythlore/vol2/iss2/1

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Mythopoeic Society at SWOSU Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Mythlore: A Journal of J.R.R. Tolkien, C.S. Lewis, Charles Williams, and Mythopoeic Literature by an authorized editor of SWOSU Digital Commons. An ADA compliant document is available upon request. For more information, please contact phillip.fitzsimmons@swosu.edu.

To join the Mythopoeic Society go to: http://www.mythsoc.org/join.htm
Mythcon 51: A VIRTUAL “HALFLING” MYTHCON
July 31 - August 1, 2021 (Saturday and Sunday)
http://www.mythsoc.org/mythcon/mythcon-51.htm

Mythcon 52: The Mythic, the Fantastic, and the Alien Albuquerque, New Mexico; July 29 - August 1, 2022
http://www.mythsoc.org/mythcon/mythcon-52.htm
for Creative Anachronism, it contains material on constructing authentic medieval costumery, chain-mail, weapons for use on the field of honor (the SCA holds several tourneys throughout the year at which the fighting men go into combat for their respective causes and reputations); also instructions for basic swordsmanship, a lesson on how to address lords and ladies of various levels in the medieval social and political hierarchy, child care, loom construction, the art of falconry, chess, and heraldry. Other regular features include reviews of books pertaining to the subject of medieval living, articles on ancient poetry, and letters from the readers. TI is in a sense a Whole Earth Catalog of the medieval era — it's one of the most functional fanzines around; its purpose is quickly defined and carried out with skill, wit, and distinctive flair.

Tournaments Illuminated doesn't carry articles on fantasy literature; it contains material examining the subject of many of those fantasy works. It brings the whole world of knights and damsels and kings and queens into the present, it presents it all as a still-viable way of life, and on first glance appears to be much more exciting and rewarding an experience than the reading of a book: I mean, instead of leafing wistfully through Morte d'Arthur we can live that universe, we can make it all a reality. However, eventually one learns that one life is really much the same as any other; that one of the main attractions of the period before 1650 (the time covered by the SCA) is in its contrast with 20th Century U.S.A. Had we lived in that one of the main attractions of the period before 1650 (the time covered by the SCA) is in its contrast with 20th Century U.S.A. Had we lived in the Middle Ages, very probably we would be the people to revive an even older culture. I imagine a majority of Anachronists do still consume vast amounts of fantasy literature — it's all just a part of the general fantasist 'mentality,' and really there is much more to the fantasy genre than escape on a simple level.

The artwork in TI is in general quite good, augmented by occasional use of color mimeography, be it in aesthetic quality (Diana Paxson DeCles is art editor in charge) or graphic clarity in illustrations for articles on sewing, weaponry or the fighting arts.

TOURNAMENTS ILLUMINATED (c/o The Society for Creative Anachronism, Inc., 2015 Forest Ave., Berkeley CA 94705) Mimeo, 15/63pp. $3.00 per year, 50¢ per copy.

TO MICHAL: SONNETS AFTER MARRIAGE

I
This you shall owe me — that your soul shall keep
Its bravery of childhood unmarred:
Awake, in love's protection; and asleep,
By not so much as dreams of treachery scarred.

Falls, or a thistle-spake or a bee's sting,
Quarrels, and such afflictions of our dust
Shall pierce you; but no too-quick withering
Shall age you in this heart that holds your trust.

Here shall your young eyes weep away their woe,
Your childish angers here shall have their way,
Here your intent simplicity shall show
The labours it rejoices to display,
And here shall beat unharmed, in storms of glee,
Your joyous and impetuous infancy.

II
And so it shall be, when you come to die,
And that strange guest, for whom no watchdogs bark,
Talks downstairs with our elders, though you cry
At going out from me into the dark,

When you must leave the attic where we play,
This wide clear room that on the garden looks,
Where we have loved each other all the day
And had our games, our picnics, and our books,

When some old voice — which long ago was known,
Telling our names, some pleasant voice and mild,
And bidding us be friends — shall call you down,
Then most of all shall you be found a child,

Shrink, cry, yet bravely (by what longings sped)
Climb slowly down those last dark stairs to bed.

—Charles Williams

(from Windows of Night (1942). Published seven years after Williams' marriage to Florence Conway, renamed by her husband, Michal, after the Biblical wife of David. —G. E. Sadler)

CHARLES WILLIAMS

a short reading list

HIS FICTION:

HIS POETRY:
Arthurian Torso (containing "The Figure of Arthur" by Williams, and "Williams and the Arthuriad" by C.S. Lewis). Oxford University Press, London.
The Place of the Lion. Eerdmans.

HIS DRAMA:

HIS ESSAYS:
The Figure of Beatrice: A Study in Dante. Noonday, New York.
He Came Down from Heaven and The Forgiveness of Sins. Faber and Faber, London.

ANTHOLOGY:

ABOUT HIM: