Minor, Early References to Tolkien and His Works

Abstract
Completes the briefly annotated checklist of minor early secondary materials on Tolkien not represented in Judith A. Johnson’s Six Decades of Tolkien Criticism.

Additional Keywords
Tolkien, J.R.R.—Bibliography; Tolkien, J.R.R.—Critical reception

This article is available in Mythlore: A Journal of J.R.R. Tolkien, C.S. Lewis, Charles Williams, and Mythopoeic Literature: https://dc.swosu.edu/mythlore/vol14/iss1/8
Minor, Early References to Tolkien and His Works
Compiled by George H. Thompson

NOTE: This completes Professor Thomson’s annotated checklist of early secondary materials on Tolkien, 1947-1971. None of these items appear in Judith A. Johnson’s J.R.R. Tolkien: Six Decades of Criticism (1986). The items in this checklist are mainly trivial in themselves, and significant primarily as a record of popularity of Tolkien's works. Mythlore has been pleased to present over the last few years Professor Thomson’s additions to the complete bibliography on Tolkien which will eventually be produced. With this installment, Professor Thomson hands the work on Tolkien over to other hands. JRC

I. Anonymous Items Arranged Alphabetically by Journal or Book Title

"Thuds", Amra Vol. II, No. 39, p. 3. (A brief editorial review of the Ace LOTR affair suggests that you write Ace if you object, but no boycott please.)

"Tolkien, J.R.R." The Author’s and Writer’s Who’s Who. London: Burke’s Peerage Ltd., 1963, p. 483. (Tolkien's address and publications are listed.)

Best Books for Children. 10th ed. New York: R.R. Bowker, 1968, p. 76. (There is a two-line description of H, also included in earlier editions.)

"This Hill Inhospitable", Bestsellers (New York), July 1967, pp. 12-13. (This article on Tolkien’s popularity is made up mainly of letters to Tolkien and his publisher, Ballantine Books. There are references to posters and other aspects of the cult.)

"National Book Sale". The Bookseller, 24 Feb. 1968, p. 1328. [In the National Book Sale opening Feb. 21 Allen & Unwin offered the first edition of the 3-vol. LOTR reduced from 75s. to 40. Orders exceeded copies available 10 to 1. The new edition remains available at 75s.]

"Amon Lhaw" (Letter Column). Entmoot No. 2 (1965), pp. 3-7. (The question of what kinds of music are appropriate to the various peoples of Middle-earth and to the specific songs Tolkien has written is channeled over by a number of correspondents and by Greg Shaw as editor. The comments are distinguished for their subjective honesty.)

"Ballantine Books has Paperback Rights to Tolkien". Publisher’s Weekly 188 (2 Aug. 1965), 44. [By arrangement with Houghton Mifflin Ballantine Books will bring out H on Aug. 5 at $1.95 (Actual date, Aug. 16), and LOTR, 3 vols. in Oct. at $.95 each. Ace Books had the legal right to publish a paperback edition because of "a confusing clause in the copyright law."]

"1965 Paperback Best Sellers in the Bookstores". Publisher’s Weekly 183 (17 Jan. 1966), 64-67. [H and LOTR are number 10 among "Mass Market Paperbacks." Ballantine has in print 268,000 copies of H and 405,000 of LOTR. The Ace edition is in addition to this. (p. 65)]

"1967 Paperback Best Sellers in the Bookstores". Publisher’s Weekly 193 (23 Jan. 1968), 44. [Tolkien books are second among "Mass Market Paperbacks." Ballantine total printings since 1965: 3,881,000. For 1967: TR—52,860; H—357,000; FR—320,000; TT—268,000; RK—273,000.]

"Tips", Publisher’s Weekly 194 (11 Nov. 1968), 33. [Ballantine Books has sold 5,000,000 copies in all of H, FR, TT, RK, and TR. Weekly sales of the four Hobbit books have been averaging 12,500 copies apiece each week for the past three months.]

"The Publishing Scene: But Does It Sell Books?" Saturday Review 50 (18 Mar. 1967), 25. ["Frodo Lives" and other such buttons by Mark Sloane of Greenwich Village have started a trend. A large number have been sold.]

"New Magic in Animation". Time 92 (27 Dec. 1968), 42-47. [Heinz Edelman, who did the artistic creations for Yellow Submarine is said to be "thinking about animating J.R.R. Tolkien's The Lord of the Rings trilogy..."]

II. Items Arranged Alphabetically by Author

Boucher, Anthony. "Recommended Reading". Fantasy and Science Fiction 14 (May 1958), 112. [He reports that "the International Fantasy Award, presented at last year’s World Science Fiction Convention in London, went to J.R.R. Tolkien’s The Lord of the Rings." He quotes Allen & Unwin as disclosing that Tolkien is now "working as best he can on The Silmarillion, which might best be described as the source book for *The Lord of the Rings. We cannot hold out any hope that it will be published this year]."

Elliott, George F. "A Defense of Fiction". Hudson Review 16 (1963), 9-48. [Discussing pure fantasy as part of one form of fiction, he says: "Such fiction, though it is frequently looked at with condescension, is in no danger of disappearing. Tolkien's Lord of the Rings is four volumes of charming fantasy in the British manner"]
Evers, Earl. "Tolkien Con and Pro" (Letter). Niekas No. 14 (16 Dec. 1965), pp. 53-54. [A rather wild-eyed attack on Tolkien's values, his gods, his elves, and his ring. The letter is answered, pp. 54-55, by Nan Braude; also in a letter from George Scott, Niekas No. 16 (30 June 1966), p. 81.]

Fein, Adrienne. Letter. Riverside Quarterly (Regina) 3 (March 1969) 320-321. [An article on Sandra Miesel's article, Riverside Quarterly 3 (Aug. 1968). Evidence from KBO, essentially pp. 64-65, and comments from LOR suggest that there is no jargon in LOR.]

Foster, [Robert] Bob. "A Glossary of Middle Earth". Niekas Nos. 16-20. [See West, TB3, and add the following letters: Peristar Formello, No. 17, p. 67, who criticizes several translations; Patrick Strang, No. 20, p. 86, who doubts Oros are immortal; and Jim Allen, No. 20, pp. 92-93 who comments on the definition of Middle-earth and some of the Elvish translation.]

Gaines, Benford. Letter. "On Middle-Earth". Chicago Daily News, Panorama, 5 Oct. 1965, p. 7. [He quotes the postulated policy of Woolworth's Book Store (Chicago) who sell the Ace edition of LOTR but collect a $.10 royalty with each sale and propose to send the proceeds to Tolkien. The letter relates to the article by Haas, 7 Aug. 1965.]

Gaughan, Jack. Letter. Niekas No. 13 (15 Sept. 1965), p. 38. [He briefly explains that "the error (flying horse instead of pterodactyl) on the Two Towers cover is mine alone." It was the result of hasty reading before doing the illustration.]

Glass, Bill. Letter. Niekas No. 13 (15 Sept. 1965), p. 39. [He explains that his review in What Shall I Call It of The Fellowship of the Ring, Books I and II, published by Penguin, was a hoax. The review is here reprinted. This may explain any rumors of such an edition.]

Hill, Joy. "Daily Life on Middle Earth". Bookseller, 3 Aug. 1968, pp. 374-375. [Miss Hill screens Tolkien's mail at Allen & Unwin. Here she gives a popular account of the many letters and parleys she confronts daily. With the 1-volume paperback of LOTR about to appear, she expects an increase, especially in inquiries about The Silmarillion. "Say it's a myth" said Miss Hill. "but how can I when it is a fact" says Miss Hill.]

Meskys, Edmund R. "Of Tolkienish Things". Niekas No. 12 (15 June 1965), pp. 77-78. [He discusses in some detail the way Ace Books has brought out the paperback edition of LOTR, and the copyright situation.]

Meskys, Edmund R. "Speaking of Tolkien". Niekas No. 16 (30 June 1966), p. 96. [He is going to publish in full a Rasmuk's interview with Tolkien; Issacs and Zimbardo are preparing a volume and welcome MSS; and he and Marion Bradley are thinking of a collection of fannish articles, "to be edited and (if necessary) rewritten by here and published by me." This last project was never carried through.]

Moorcocok, Mike. Letter Eldritch Dream Quest I:2 (May 1961), 54. ["The Lord of the Rings might be an allegory, you know -- the tale of a War between Town and Country? ..."]

P., O. "Behind the Lines". The Bookseller, 31 July 1954, p. 624. [Two paragraphs captioned "Swans and Geese" and "Sheeps and Goats" recount the death of the staff of Allen & Unwin looked scornfully at the half-million word MSS of LOTR -- and then one by one were won over when they read it. They became sheep rather than scornful goats.]

P., O. "Behind the Lines: Purely Coincidental". The Bookseller, 12 Nov. 1955, p. 1667. ["Incidentally, I am asked by Messrs. Allen & Unwin to let it be known that although Professor J.R.R. Tolkien is an Oxford man his Hobbit trilogy has no local significance. Mr. Basil Blackwell most definitely is not the Lord of the Rings." This little joke refers to Blackwell's plan to publish a list of booksellers who will take an oath not to participate in a second-hand book ring.]

Smith, Nancy. "Pleasures of the Hobbit Table". Diplomate (New York), Oct. 1966, pp. 42-43, 72-74. [An engaging interview of hobbit eating habits, interlaced with recipes in the English tradition. (The recipes are for real, but their excellence remains unverified. GHT.)]

Spergel, Howard. "Heard About Hobbits?" Augusta Chronicle, 4 May 1962, p. 1b. [An article about wood sculptures by Susan Rawlings of Tolkien Figures -- now on display in Augusta-Rockwood County Public Library. "Miss Rawlings did the display because she found Tolkien's characters 'esthetically appealing.'"] double of the Blackbury River; the fact that there are two Rosies in the story, and that Pierce manages to get them confused; etc.

The narrative is open-ended, so that a sequel is possible — almost probable, since we have only gone through three of the twelve astrological houses that serve as the novel's symbolic framework. Whether it will stand on its own or be extended in the future, this many-faceted, delicately woven tale should fascinate anyone who is asking the ultimate questions about meaning and mythopoeia.

A TOLKIEN INDEX

A Working Concordance, the first volume of Dr. Paul Nolan Hyde's comprehensive index of the writings of J.R.R. Tolkien, was first made available at the 18th Mythopoeic Conference and is now being offered to the general membership of the Mythopoeic Society and other interested parties. It is a compilation of names, places, things, and language elements together with volume and page numbers of (almost) every occurrence. Volumes indexed include The Hobbit, The Lord of the Rings, The Silmarillion, Unfinished Tales, The Book of Lost Tales (I & II), The Lays of Beleriand, The Shaping of Middle-earth, The Road Goes Ever On, The Letters of J.R.R. Tolkien, The Monsters and the Critics, and Tolkien's "Guide to the Names in the Lord of the Rings" included in Jared Lobdell's A Tolkien Compass. The index also includes a complete listing of the Old and Middle English words used by J.R.R. Tolkien including the lengthy passages of Old English given in The Shaping of Middle-earth. It is soft-back, spiral bound, 163 pages, double column format.

Copies may be obtained by sending $20.00/copy plus $2.00 shipping and handling to Paul Nolan Hyde, 2661 E. Lee, Simi Valley, CA 93065.

Apologies to Benjamin Urrutia. The review "Our Bodies, Our Elves", in Mythlore 50 was written by him.

Courtly Love, from page 45

So the mad, gallant, foolhardy experiment is over. But Western civilization will never be the same. Woman will never again be seen as merely a piece of property or an object of barter. She is a human being — a person — whatever she may do or fail to do. And if she cares to stand on her dignity, she is a lady, with all a lady's prerogatives. As Lewis puts it,

To leap up on errands, to go through heat or cold, at the bidding of one's lady, or even of any lady, would seem but honorable and natural to a gentleman of the thirteenth or even of the seventeenth century; and most of us have gone shopping in the twentieth with ladies who show no sign of regarding the tradition as a dead letter." (Ibid., p. 44.)

A lady, any lady, retains something of her ancient authority — just how much no man can be quite sure. It is hers to have and to hold. She can forfeit her title to honor only by conduct unbefitting a lady, of which, to be sure, no wise woman would ever be guilty. Courtly love is Western man's heritage; it still flows in his bloodstream. "Neither the form nor the sentiment of this old poetry," says Lewis, "has passed away without leaving indelible traces on our minds." (Ibid., p. 1.)
