I went into a bakery shop, to watch them roll the dough.
I didn't realize that they could put on such a show.
There were two bakers in the shop, all in white from head to toe.
They donned their caps and aprons, and how they rolled that dough.
First, they set the sponge right—they mixed the bread just so.
Then they molded it into loaves, oh, how they rolled the dough.
Then into the proof box, the pans went row by row.
And while they waited for it there, they kept on rolling dough.
Cinnamon rolls and butter rolls, pies, cakes, and doughnuts too.
They really kept me guessing as to what they were going to do.
Then into the oven it all went, these pans just row by row.
And while it baked to a golden brown, they kept on rolling dough.
Out they came when they were done, and on the rack just so.
Tender and light and browned just right, they were through rolling dough.

(Editor's Note: Rolling dough may be its own kind of romance.)
