Interior of a sod house near Homestead, which is registered with the National Historical Society.

Shadow and texture from Red Rock State Park located at Hinton.

Lee Cotter's Blacksmith shop, which was opened in 1913 and is still operational today and is also registered with the National Historical Society.

Tony Neely, senior Commercial Art major at Southwestern Oklahoma State University and photographer for the University Public Relations office, traveled western Oklahoma in search of images which would convey his impressions of this region.

Tony was recently selected for Who's Who of American Colleges and Universities. He also received a first place award at the Graphics Communication Society 1988 Annual Student Competition in Oklahoma City.
