AUTHORS WHOSE WORKS APPEAR IN THIS ISSUE

KERRI BEAMAN and SENEAL MORRIS are SOSU students who did research on the shivaree in Professor Teddy R. Pyle's 1213 English Composition class during the fall of 1982 and did the article which appears here.

OPAL HARTSELL BROWN now has the last name Garrity; she has been one of our foremost supporters and contributors during these past two years.

GLADYS TOLER BURRIS, formerly a teacher at OSU and in the Stillwater Public Schools, is a daughter-in-law of A. H. Burris — the subject of her article. Mrs. Burris, an active member of the OWFI, is an honored writer in state writing circles.

YVONNE CARPENTER has lived in Western Oklahoma all her life. She has been a teacher, a newspaper writer, a community theater participant — and is presently a freelance writer, mother, and wife.

R. R. CHAPMAN of Arapaho boasts of ninety-plus years in this area and is a valued WESTVIEW contributor.

THELMA CLAMPITT, prior to her retirement in 1972, taught in the SOSU Language Arts Department. She presently lives in Ada.

IDENA MCFADIN CLARK is a resident of Norman and a member of the OWFI. She has been published once before in our journal.

SHEILA COHLMIA, an employee at 3-M in Weatherford, is formerly from Tyrone.

MARGARET FRIEDRICH is a retired teacher from Clinton. She's an active member of the Trinity Lutheran Church, the Custer County Retired Teachers' Association, and the Weatherford Wordhandlers.

STONEY HARDCASTLE is an envied opponent in writing contests. He teaches Creative Writing at Eastern Oklahoma State College in Wilburton and is in demand as a writers' workshop leader.

DIANE HOLCOMB lives in Sperry, Oklahoma; she's a freelance writer and a real-estate agent.

VERA HOLDING is a longtime staff member of the OU Professional Writers' Short Course. Formerly of Tipton, she now lives in Norman.

PAT KOURT, a SOSU alumna, lives and teaches in Thomas, where her husband operates a pharmacy.

DR. R. SAMUEL LACKEY is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy and English at SOSU.

ELSIE LANG teaches Composition, Elementary Education English Methods, and Women's Literature at SOSU.

SHERYL L. NELMS is much in demand as a leader of poetry workshops since she is the OWFI's most prolific and most published poet.

JOANNA THURSTON ROPER has taught English in Oklahoma schools for the last three decades — most recently for twelve years in the SOSU Language Arts Department.
