

Acknowledgments

This book was, in many ways, a lifetime in the making, so it would be impossible to thank everyone who has, directly or indirectly, contributed to my formulating the project. However, I would be remiss if I did not single out, at least, the following people for acknowledgments.

I would like to thank the contributors to this volume, who were kind enough to respond to my invitation to participate and went on to produce some of the finest academic writing I've yet encountered. I also appreciate the valuable time and feedback the following manuscript reviewers offered: Jerry Vigna, Marc Lucht, Dennis Jowaisis, Tracy Floreani, and Catherine DiPaolo. Finally, I'd like to thank the organizers of the Southwest Commission on Religious Studies conference on March 11, 2012—including Darren Middleton—who helped introduce our work-in-progress to a larger audience of fellow scholars who reassured us that we were, indeed, onto something special with this project.